HAWKS BREAKS SECOND RECORD

PRESIDENT HOOVER ASKS RESIGNATION OF SEYMOUR LOWMAN

Prohibition Chief Will Be Removed In Thirty Days

WASHINGTON, June 29.—President Hoover has asked for the resignation of Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, the United Press learned today.

Lowman's post will be filled by a new appointee within thirty days, according to information from official circles.

Lowman was formally notified that the president desired his resignation during a White House conference last night. The conference between Lowman and the president came twenty-four hours after a similar discussion of recent prohibition publicity at the treasury with Secretary Mellon.

The president has repeatedly indicated his displeasure over publicity methods employed by Lowman and Prohibition Commissioner J. H. Doran. After the White House conference with Secretary Mellon Thursday evening reports were current in Washington that both Lowman and Doran would be replaced.

Stories of dramatic enforcement efforts emanating from the prohibition bureau since March 4 have been contrary to the policy set down by Hoover early in his administration when he repudiated all sensational methods and dramatic appeals. Reports that marines would be ordered to the Detroit border sector, that educational propaganda would be extended to public schools and ill-considered comment on border patrol killings forced the president to examine the conduct of the prohibition bureau, it was said.

There was no official statement from the White House on the treasury as to the reasons behind the president's request for Lowman's resignation.

CONDITION OF GIRL FLYER IS SERIOUS; COMPANION KILLED

Anxious Friend Is Aloft On Endurance Attempt

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 29.—Viola Gentry battled death in the Nassau hospital today while high above Roosevelt Field William Ulbrich, her close friend, sought to stifle his anxiety as he flew back and forth across the field with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jensen in the plane "Three Musketeers" in an attempt to break the refueling endurance record.

Hospital authorities said Miss Gentry, suffering from a fractured arm, a deep gash in the head and possible internal injuries, was "on the danger list." They have refused to allow anyone to see her except one friend identified only as "Mr. Rockwell."

Miss Gentry and her companion, Jack Ashcraft, ran into a tree yesterday while attempting to land after their fuel ran out. Ashcraft was killed.

Ulbrich saw the accident, and immediately radioed to a hangar for news about her condition. Before he could get an answer Jensen ordered him up to the controls and Mrs. Jensen then instructed persons on the ground to supply no information about Miss Gentry fearing it might upset Ulbrich.

Miss Gentry does not know that Ashcraft was killed.

RUTH LIVERMORE IS GIVEN SIX MONTHS REFORMATORY TERM

Mercy Recommendation Saves Second Life Sentence

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 29.—Ruth Livermore, the raven-haired former school teacher who turned burglar, was sentenced to six to thirty months in the women's reformatory at Marysville today.

Sentence was pronounced by Common Pleas Judge David C. Jenkins. The twenty-three-year-old girl was found guilty by a jury late yesterday.

Mercy was recommended, thus permitting the court to impose a light sentence.

Had the jury failed to recommend mercy a sentence of life imprisonment would have been mandatory.

The sentence climaxed a bitter court fight to free the girl whose common-law husband, Lester, is serving life in the state penitentiary for the same burglary.

Both were charged with robbing an inhabited dwelling at night.

Livermore pleaded guilty and absolved his pretty young wife, but she later pleaded guilty and also was sentenced to life.

After Mrs. Livermore's commitment, her attorneys instituted proceedings for a trial, declaring a confession Ruth made had been "tortured from her."

The girl's life sentence was set aside and the trial began early this week.

The case because of the severity of the former school teacher's sentence, drew nationwide attention and numerous social agencies and newspapers began a fight on her behalf.

Livermore testified Ruth Marie sat in an automobile several blocks distant while he robbed the John Mitchell home in an exclusive suburb.

The state contended the girl helped carry away the loot.

The jury was out for twenty-four hours. When the seven men and five women returned their verdict of guilty, Ruth buried her face in her hands and sobbed.

Ben Sackarow, Mrs. Livermore's attorney, is undecided whether the verdict will be appealed.

CLEVELAND FLIGHT OFF TO GOOD START

CLEVELAND, O., June 29.—The Stinson-Detroit "City of Cleveland" and its two pilots, R. L. Mitchell and Byron K. Newcomb, swung through the sky above Cleveland airport today with a new refueling endurance flight record as its goal.

The plane soared into the air shortly after six o'clock last night and its motor was still functioning perfectly this morning.

The plane was refueled for the first time at 7 a. m. the contact ship, manned by E. M. Bashom, Dale Dryer and J. O. Hayden, lowered two gallons of gasoline and a hearty breakfast to the fliers.

Weather forecasts today indicated the pilots went through the worst flying weather during the night and that forty-eight hours of fair weather are in sight.

A drizzle of rain and heavy headwinds hampered the flight somewhat around midnight.

The actual starting time was 6:38:51 p. m.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO WIFE'S MURDER

MARIETTA, O., June 29.—An early trial will be asked for Newt W. Mayle, former army captain who pleaded not guilty to a charge of first degree murder in connection with the death of his wife, Marian, county authorities announced today.

Mrs. Mayle was shot fatally early this week. Police claimed at the time that Mayle returned home intoxicated, after attending a war veterans' meeting in Athens, and shot his wife during a resultant quarrel. Mayle today refused to permit the removal of his wife's body to New York for burial. The woman's brother, M. M. Wimpey, came here to claim the body but Mayle said burial would be made here.

IOWA SAVED FOR NEAR BEER

Seized Shipment Is Turned Back

DES MOINES, June 29.—Thirsty Iowans can go right on drinking their near beer. They'll violate no law unless they do a bit of "spiking," says Municipal Judge J. E. Mershon.

Ten carloads of less than 1-2 of 1 per cent brew shipped in a week ago by the Manitowoc, Wis., Brewery Products Company must be trundled back to the freight yards by the zealous police who confiscated it at the instigation of John B. Hammond, militant dry crusader.

Back into the possession of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad goes the $18,000 cargo, heralded as "the greatest shipment of near beer ever sent into the middle west."

All this is in keeping with Judge Mershon's decision which came after a two-day hearing in which the near beer manufacturers and distributors, Hammond all had their say.

The court held the Iowa code does not forbid the sale and transportation of malt beverages, not intoxicating in fact, Hammond contended it did.

The interior of the room where the body was found was in disorder, indicating, police said, that Parlow battled with his assassins before one of them stepped behind him and fired the fatal shot.

Detectives said the roadhouse had been linked with the liquor traffic on numerous occasions.

KETTERING SPEAKS TO ANNUAL ANTIOCH GRADUATING CLASS

Fifty-Six Receive Degrees At 73rd Commencement

Degrees were conferred on fifty-six seniors at Antioch College at the seventy-third annual commencement exercises held Saturday morning on the campus in front of the mound that has been a landmark at the college.

Charles F. Kettering, Dayton, vice-president of General Motors Corp. and a trustee of Antioch, who was recently honored at the 1929 Ohio State University commencement, delivered the commencement address, giving the graduates suggestions for success in the business world.

Kettering, who is head of the General Motors research bureau, is the man who made possible the organization program at Antioch in 1920 and also gave the necessary funds for the construction of a new science building, nearing completion, and built at a cost of between $200,000 and $300,000.

Degree of bachelor of arts was conferred on forty-two seniors, including five students who received special honors, and fourteen seniors received their bachelor of science degree. In addition nine undergraduate students were awarded annual special honors.

The graduation ceremony was preceded by the academic procession from the college library in which the graduates and faculty

JACKSON, O., June 29.—Charges of murder against John Wallace, 63, were dropped today after a jury found him not guilty of killing Marion Harper, 30, a recluse. Wallace pleaded self-defense.

BLAME BOOTLEGGER BATTLE FOR MURDER IN OHIO ROAD HOUSE

Anonymous Caller Tells Wife That Husband Slain

TOLEDO, O., June 29.—Albert Parlow, 48, was found shot to death in Riverview Inn, an Ottawa River roadhouse early today, apparently the victim of a bootlegger's war.

Parlow had been shot in the back presumably during a terrific struggle.

First news that a tragedy had occurred was received by Parlow's wife at 4:30 a. m. when an anonymous telephone informant told her her husband had been injured.

"Hurry over to Riverview Inn," the caller said. "Your husband has been injured."

Mrs. Parlow summoned Dave Johnson and Jack Mosteller, friends of the slain man, and the three drove to the scene.

The roadhouse was deserted, the front door standing open. As Mrs. Parlow and the two men entered they found Parlow lying in a pool of blood.

Johnson summoned police. Officers believe Parlow was slain by someone who knew him intimately.

The interior of the room where the body was found was in disorder, indicating, police said, that Parlow battled with his assassins before one of them stepped behind him and fired the fatal shot.

Detectives said the roadhouse had been linked with the liquor traffic on numerous occasions.

SCHMELING GETS TOO MUCH PRAISE

BERLIN, June 29.—The space given by the German press to Max Schmelling's boxing victory over Paulino Uzcudun in New York was a cause of great chagrin and mental anguish to Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German minister of foreign affairs.

"We Germans used to be interested in Goethe," the minister said, "but the public now reads about how Schmelling cut Paulino's eye."

Dr. Stresemann, though gratified that Schmelling won—or so he said—was greatly displeased because the newspaper front pages were virtually covered with reports of the Schmelling fight while the news of the significant Reichstag debates on the same evening as the fight received hardly any newspaper notice at all.

FORMER NIGHT CLUB MAN DEATH SUSPECT

BOSTON, June 29.—New York and Boston investigators announced here today they were seeking the former proprietor of a Boston night club, described as a gunman, as one of the occupants of the automobile in which Frank Marlow, slain racketeer, was "taken for a ride."

They said they expected to apprehend the suspect today.

The former night club operator, authorities said, was now engaged in the bootleg racket. They added they had positive information that he was in the death car when Marlow was slain in New York.

FLYER LANDS PLANE AGAINST FENCE BUT SETS SPEED RECORD

Spans Continent In Fastest Time Both Directions

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 29.—Capt. Frank Hawks, America's foremost transcontinental commuter, came back today from where he started Tuesday, with two more records and a damaged plane.

The records were achieved by flying across the continent faster than anyone—even himself—had ever flown before. The damage to his plane was done when he rammed into a fence here—the only serious mishap of the trip.

Hawks landed at Roosevelt Field at 1:16:04 a. m. (12:16:04 a. m. E. S. T.), shoved his goggles up into his hair and gulping a pint of it, he surveyed the cracked wing tip of his plane and said:

"Well, when I crack 'em up, I crack 'em good, don't I?"

It had taken him just thirty-six hours, forty-eight minutes and sixteen and three-fifths seconds to span the continent twice—nineteen hours, ten minutes on the westward flight and seventeen hours, thirty-eight minutes and three-fifths seconds on the return journey.

He had broken his own west-coast record of eighteen hours, twenty-four minutes and fifty-nine seconds, and had bettered the east-west mark of the late Capt. C. B. D. Collier and the late Harry Tucker who flew from here to the Pacific coast in twenty-four hours, fifty-one minutes.

Hawks remained in Los Angeles seven hours and fourteen minutes before starting back.

The flyer was reticent about speaking of his collision with the galvanized iron fence here although when he first crawled out of the plane he was heard to say:

"Not enough lights on this field. There is only one flood light at Roosevelt Field and it was on when he landed. In addition, two beacon lights were blazing. He was believed to have overrotated the plane, he was blinded by flood light, for he came down to a perfect landing against a westerly wind."

Hawks swung his plane toward the south side of the field to avoid the crowd of 800 persons that dashed toward him. The plane crashed through the fence and the left wing was damaged.

The engine of the monomony of engine roar, Hawks at first was unable to hear questions. Later he explained he had enjoyed good visibility and perfect weather until he got over Pennsylvania where he ran into a fog. He explained he flew high most of the way and attributed the lack of reports on his progress to that fact. Weather reports came in perfectly over his radio he said.

Mrs. Hawks, the first person to greet him, said she felt no apprehension during the flights but "my heart was in my throat when I saw him hit that fence."

Hawks, dressed as though he were out for a game of golf instead of a hazardous flight across two mountain ranges and a desert, wore white flannel trousers and a brown coat.

The rabbit's foot, wired to the rear of his plane brought the expected good luck in the shape of tail winds which shot him eastward at increased speed.

WANTED: DRY LAW EXPERT
Crime Commission Wants Impartial Observer To Check Dry Enforcement.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—An impartial scientific observer who can be relied upon to make a careful analysis of prohibition enforcement in the United States is being sought by President Hoover's law enforcement commission.

From its preliminary survey of the national crime problem, the commission has become convinced that the best method of tackling its perplexing and intricate task is to divide the problem into sections. An expert will be obtained to assist the commission in handling each of the sections selected.

While the commission insists prohibition will not be the center of a sweeping inquiry, observers will discuss prohibition enforcement exhaustively, but will avoid commitment on whether the law is enforceable or should be repealed.

Nothing concrete is expected to develop from the commission's study of the crime problem until fall, when open hearings are to be held.

In formulating the scope of its inquiry, and determining appropriate sections into which its work may be divided, the commission has had the counsel of many eminent legal authorities.

HELD AS WITNESS IN MARLOW DEATH

Mary (Mickey) Seiden, left, New York night club entertainer, has been held with four men as material witnesses by Gotham police following the slaying of Frank Marlow, right, Broadway racketeer. Mickey is described as a favorite of Marlow's. She and the men were said by police to have been at Marlow's last supper. Police meantime spread dragnet for slayers.

BRITISH AIRPLANE CARRIER FINDS MEN WITH WRECKED SHIP

Trio Missing Seven Days Found Near Azore Islands

MADRID, June 29.—Commander Ramon Franco and his three lost flight companions who had been tossing helplessly on the stormy waves of the North Atlantic for seven full days were rescued today by the British airplane carrier Eagle.

The rescue was made near the Azores Islands, in the vicinity where the fliers were forced down in their huge seaplane Dornier No. 10, sometime last Saturday morning while they were enroute to the United States via the Azores.

The news of the rescue, first received at Gibraltar by wireless from the Eagle, was announced by

GREETINGS
CARTAGENA, Spain, June 29.—The Alcazars naval base received a wireless message from the British aircraft carrier Eagle today which said:

"We are all right. Affectionate greetings.
"Ramon Franco."

The Spanish foreign office shortly after noon. The announcement was a signal for wild excitement among the employees of the government buildings and the scenes of intense unbridled joy soon spread to all of Madrid.

The report was immediately conveyed to Premier Primo de Rivera and the other high officials, including the ministers of war and air. The corridors of all the government buildings soon rang with the glad tidings and before many minutes had passed the whole city had heard the news.

Intense excitement followed. The streets were packed with noon day crowds and all of them received the news of the rescue with great joy. For although in many quarters complete hope of a rescue had been abandoned, the people in general here were so confident in the ability of Commander Franco and his companions that they felt, somehow, that a rescue would be effected.

The Eagle was sent out by the British admiralty several days ago with orders to search the strip of ocean between the coast of Portugal and the islands. It carried twenty-four planes on board.

When the premier received the news of the rescue from the foreign office he was so moved that

CONDITION OF GIRL FLYER IS SERIOUS; COMPANION KILLED

Anxious Friend Is Aloft On Endurance Attempt

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 29.—Viola Field, who was killed in the Nassau Roosevelt field while high above Roosevelt field, was found today by William Ulbrick, who was flying with her, to be in a serious condition. She was found in the plane "Three Musketeers" in an attempt to break the refueling endurance record.

Hospital authorities said Miss Gentry, suffering from a fractured arm, a deep gash in the head and possible internal injuries, was "on the danger list." They have refused to allow anyone to see her except one friend identified only as "Mr. Rockwell."

TWENTY-TWO INJURED WHEN BUS TURNS OVER

Seven Suffer Serious Hurts When Heavily-Loaded Bus Skids From Road Near Youngstown; Driver Is Exonerated.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 29.—Twenty-two persons were injured, seven seriously, when a Pittsburgh-Detroit bus of the Nevin lines skidded on a wet pavement and toppled over here early today.

Twenty-seven passengers were in the bus. It was driven by Jack Irvine, manager of the Pittsburgh station of the Nevin lines, who was enroute to his home here. He sustained a possible fractured skull.

Eugene Pasquale, Pittsburgh, Pa., regular driver of the bus, suffered severe injuries to his back.

Irvine was not responsible for the accident, F. F. Molter, division supervisor for the bus company, said in a statement.

Molter said the wet pavement combined with the fact that the road had only recently been oiled, caused the vehicle to skid.

The bus crashed into a culvert. Passengers who were interviewed at the hospital claimed Irvine attempted to pass a car going north, but failed to observe another car coming toward him. He caused the brakes, they said, causing the bus to skid.

The rear wheels caught on the stone culvert guard and the machine was whirled around and thrown over into a ditch on the left side of the road.

Passengers said it was a miracle that the bus did not catch fire.

As the bus settled on its side the passengers began crawling through the broken windows. A woman, fearing her small daughter had been hurt, screamed hysterically and two men fainted.

Those escaping uninjured helped rescue those trapped under the bus. Additional aid was summoned from nearby houses.

Thirteen of the injured were brought to hospitals here by Walter Thomas of Poland and M. W. Barnhardt, passing motorists. Ambulance was then dispatched to the scene by Sheriff Stone for five of those seriously hurt.

Molter took the remainder of the injured to hospitals in his car. The injured were brought here in another bus.

Sheriff Stone said an investigation would be made immediately. Among those injured were: Eugene Pasquale, 30, Sharpsburg, Pa., fractured spine.

Sam Schuman, New York City, fractured spine.

Mrs. Sarah B. Potter, 24, Pittsburgh, broken ankle.

Jack Irvine, Youngstown, fractured spine.

BRITISH AIRPLANE CARRIER FINDS MEN WITH WRECKED SHIP

Trio Missing Seven Days Found Near Azore Islands

MADRID, June 29.—Commander Ramon Franco and his three lost flight companions who had been tossing helplessly on the stormy waves of the North Atlantic for seven full days were rescued today by the British airplane carrier Eagle.

The rescue was made near the Azores Islands, in the vicinity where the fliers were forced down in their huge seaplane Dornier No. 10, sometime last Saturday morning while they were enroute to the United States via the Azores.

The news of the rescue, first received at Gibraltar by wireless from the Eagle, was announced by the Spanish foreign office shortly after noon.

The announcement was a signal for wild excitement among the employees of the government buildings and the scenes of intense unbridled joy soon spread to all of Madrid.

The report was immediately conveyed to Premier Prieto de Rivera and the other high officials, including the ministers of war and air. The corridors of all the government buildings soon rang with the glad tidings and before many minutes had passed the whole city had heard the news.

Intense excitement followed. The streets were packed with noon crowds and all of them received the news of the rescue with great joy. For although in many quarters complete hope of a rescue had been abandoned, the people in general here were so confident in the ability of Commander Franco and his companions that they felt, somehow, that a rescue would be effected.

The Eagle was sent out by the British admiralty several days ago with orders to search the strip of ocean between the coast of Portugal and the islands. It carried twenty-four planes aboard.

When the premier received the news of the rescue from the foreign office he was so moved that (Continued on Page Eight)

GALE SWEEPS TEXAS COAST; HIGH DAMAGE

HOUSTON, Texas, June 29.—Blowing fifty miles an hour at times, a tropical gale left a trail of damage today along the south Texas coast.

Fishing vessels were damaged, trees uprooted, windows smashed and telephone and telegraph lines were flattened between several cities along the waterfront.

A heavy rain accompanied the sale which raged four hours. No reports of casualties were received here.

COMMUNITY PICNIC AND CELEBRATION AT SHAWNEE PARK

Shawnee Park is your park---this is your community celebration---this is your day. The Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, jointly sponsoring this community Independence Day celebration, believe that much good can be accomplished at a community affair in which Xenians rub elbows with each other and a spirit of neighborliness prevails which will bear fruit in a sentiment of closer co-operation among Xenians.

Independence Day is by right a day of celebration, marking, as it does, the birth of the United States. It is therefore fitting that Xenians unite in fostering this occasion and show their community spirit by their presence. Out of such occasions as this comes a community good that will go far toward furthering the continued progress of Xenia and the happiness of its citizens. Let's make this a real community celebration and take advantage of the beautiful municipal park which Xenians have worked tirelessly to make possible.

His young wife, the former Helen Baines Thompson, who recently became a mother, was left to grieve.

GOOD HOPE TEAM WILL OPPOSE RESERVES SUNDAY AFTERNOON
Good Hope, a semi-pro baseball nine that at present is leading the Industrial League at Washington C. H., will appear at Washington Park Sunday afternoon for a game with the Reserves.

Good Hope has a record of nine victories and only two defeats in eleven games played this season and has had three contests postponed on account of rain.

In the Industrial League, which is composed of six clubs, the team is in first place with four victories against one defeat. Six non-league games have resulted in five victories and one setback.

Reno, star pitcher for the team, will be remembered by local fans as the hurler who finished the game against the Reserves last season. Reserves tossed out Good Hope 6 to 4 last year but only earned one run off Reno, who went in as relief pitcher after the starting hurler had been knocked out of the box by a five-run rally.

Garringer, who will be behind the plate, connected for a long home run against the Reserves last season and is a long-range hitter of ability.

The visiting team will line up with Reno and Garringer forming the battery. Burnett at last base Moore at shortstop, Williams at second base, Arnold at third, Shult in right field, Whited in left field and Anderson patrolling the center garden.

The game will be called promptly at 3 o'clock.

CONVICTION OF BERT BUCKLEY UPHELD BY FEDERAL JURIST
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 29.—The U. S. circuit court of appeals here today upheld the conviction of Former State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley of Ohio, on charges of conspiring to offer a bribe and violate the national prohibition laws.

The question before the court was whether Buckley's appeal, taken after his conviction in the Columbus federal court, was perfected within the time required by law.

The appeal was filed in the Cincinnati federal appeals court and was brought here after a hearing in which the government charged it had not been perfected and therefore was invalid.

Buckley's attorneys argued that a mere legal technicality was involved and that the appeal should be reviewed as having been perfected. The government opposed this, demanding the appeal be stricken from the records.

In taking up the case the appeals court had to reinstate the appeal or affirm Buckley's conviction, the latter was done on the ground that the appeal was invalidated.

The reason why the appeal was never perfected has never been explained. The government's action came as a complete surprise inasmuch as it was generally believed the appeal had been properly filed.

After hearing arguments from both sides the appeals court directed attorneys to file briefs in support of their contentions.

The case is now expected to go to the U. S. supreme court.

ENDURANCE FLIGHT RECORD IS NEARING
MINNEAPOLIS, June 29.—A new world's endurance flight record in sight. Owen Haugland and Thorwald (Thunder) Johnson drove their sturdy red monoplane, the Miss Minneapolis, against a heavy handicap through a bright Minnesota sky today. An oil leak in the motor of the red airplane dimmed their chances but they flew on past the 146 hour mark.

The flyers must remain aloft until 10:30 a. m. Sunday to shatter the existing record of 172 hours, 32 minutes and 1 second, established by James Kelly and Reg. L. Robbins at Fort Worth.

SIX BURNED WHEN METAL SPLASHED

CHICAGO, June 29.—Six men were burned, two of them seriously, when a huge steel beam fell into a tank of molten zinc at the Heaney Galvanizing Works today and splashed the white hot metal over a group of workers.

Thomas Micek, 51, and Joseph Biesalski, 50, were blinded by the molten zinc and probably will die, it was said at the hospital where they were taken.

PROBE SHOPLIFTERS

NEWARK, O., June 29.—Investigating of shoplifting activities of eight grade and high school girls here, has implicated three other girls, one of whom was the "fence" for the others, according to juvenile authorities. The girls were said to have stolen loot valued at more than $2,000. Most of it was recovered.

Poems that Live

'Twas Ever Thus
(After Moore)

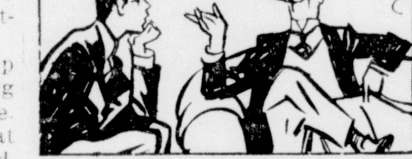

I NEVER reared a young gazelle,
(Because, you see, I never tried);
But had it known and loved me well,
No doubt the creature would have died.

My rich and aged Uncle John
Has known me long and loves me well
But still persists in living on—
I would he were a young gazelle.

I never loved a tree or flower;
But, if I had, I beg to say
The blight, the wind, the sun, or shower
Would soon have withered it away.

I've dearly loved my Uncle John,
From childhood to the present hour,
And yet he will go living on—
I would he were a tree or flower!

Why I am a CAPITALIST

IVY LEE

Why I am a SOCIALIST

NORMAN THOMAS

By HOWARD P. JONES
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, June 29.—"Most of us are capitalists, but we don't know it," commented an economic observer recently.

Certainly it is true that most of us live our lives under a system called "capitalism." A few of us grumble, a few of us excel and therefore praise, but most of us never give it a thought.

Ivy Lee and Norman Thomas are among those who have thought about it. Both talked at International House, New York, where they were heard by representatives of sixty-seven different nations. Lee, redoubtable millionaire publicist, springs to the defense of capitalism. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president of the United States, sees little good in capitalism.

Lee believes the established order is working things out about as well as they could be worked out. Thomas challenges this, points to the failure to abolish poverty, and urges socialism as a remedy.

But let them talk themselves:
By IVY LEE
Adviser in Public Relations to Large Interests

I am reminded in any discussion of socialism and capitalism of the story of the two men who were arguing the question:
"Socialists don't know what they want, but are determined to have it," said the proponent of capitalism.

"Neither do capitalists know what Socialists want," was the rejoinder. "But are equally determined that they shall not have it!"

Capitalism is the established social order under which we live. It is constantly changing. Its fundamental principle is the right of private property, the right of the individual to reap the fruits of his labor.

Russia as He Sees It
I have made two trips to Russia in the past few years. The Russian experiment has been interesting. When Lenin first took over the reins of government in Russia, they had pure communism. But soon they found out that the necessary production of food and clothing was not forthcoming to supply the necessities of life for the Russian people. Now Russia has what might be termed "state capitalism," that is, a capitalist system in which the state owns the capital.

Our Own Order
Our present social order is far from perfect. There are many problems which challenge our intelligence. But the two most fundamental problems before us, it seems to me, are, first, the safeguarding of the equality of opportunity of the individual and, second, the degree of social control that needs to be exerted over our larger enterprises.

Certainly, industrial and financial leaders have come to see that there is a certain collectivism inherent in certain types of industry which demands some social control. The problem is to give it that control and yet preserve to the individual opportunity for initiative.

By NORMAN THOMAS
Socialist Candidate for President of United States, 1928

There is no such break between systems as between courses at dinner. Capitalism, however, looks definitely to the preservation of private property and private profit.

As such, it may be called a system. It is better than feudalism, but that's all that can be said.

I am a Socialist because:
1. It is only intelligent in a world of machinery to use this power collectively if we would not perish. When man went in for machinery he went in for collectivism.

Poverty Continues
2. Modern civilization faces the possibility of abolishing poverty. The standing indictment of the capitalist system is that with these tremendous resources at its command, it has not done so.

3. The price of relative independence of nature is interdependence upon one another.

4. The land problem has not been solved. Titles are not based on rights and uses, but upon legalistic points of view. As Lloyd George once said, "We trace a title on land back to the man who stole it."

5. We need adequate social planning to eliminate waste. It is only as we plan to eliminate waste and to get rid of poverty that we have any chance to get rid of war. How can we expect to manage a system based on the law of the jungle?

6. I believe in liberty. There is no automatic solution to our problem, but we cannot work them out with the power in the hands of the few. The most striking fact about the United States is that there are so few free men in it.

7. The roots of war are inherent in the present system. The evils of economic imperialism represent a marriage between capitalism and nationalism.

ENDURANCE FLIGHT RECORD IS NEARING

MINNEAPOLIS, June 29.—A new world's endurance flight record in eight, Owen Haugland and Thorwald (Thunder) Johnson drove their sturdy red monoplane, the Miss Minneapolis, against a heavy handicap through a bright Minnesota sky today. An oil leak in the motor of the red airplane dimmed their chances but they flew on past the 146 hour mark.

The flyers must remain aloft until 10:30 a. m. Sunday to shatter the existing record of 172 hours, 32 minutes and 1 second, established by James Kelly and Reg. L. Robbins at Fort Worth.

GOOD HOPE TEAM WILL OPPOSE RESERVES SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Good Hope, a semi-pro baseball nine that at present is leading the Industrial League at Washington C. H., will appear at Washington Park Sunday afternoon for a game with the Reserves.

Good Hope has a record of nine victories and only two defeats in eleven games played this season and has had three contests postponed on account of rain.

In the Industrial League, which is composed of six clubs, the team is first place with four victories against one defeat. Six non-league games have resulted in five victories and one setback.

Reno, star pitcher for the team, will be remembered by local fans as the hurler who finished the game against the Reserves last season. Reserves nosed out Good Hope 6 to 1 last year but only earned one run off Reno, who went in as relief pitcher after the starting hurler had been knocked out of the box by a five-run rally.

Garringer, who will be behind the plate, connected for a long home run against the Reserves last season and is a long-range hitter of ability.

The visiting team will line up with Reno and Garringer forming the battery. Burnett at last base, Moore at shortstop, Williams at second base, Arnold at third, Shult in right field, Whitted in left field and Anderson patrolling the center garden.

The game will be called promptly at 3 o'clock.

CONVICTION OF BERT BUCKLEY UPHELD BY FEDERAL JURIST

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 29.—The U. S. circuit court of appeals here today upheld the conviction of Former State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley of Ohio, on charges of conspiring to offer a bribe and violate the national prohibition laws.

The question before the court was whether Buckley's appeal, taken after his conviction in the Columbus federal court, was perfected within the time required by law.

The appeal was filed in the Cincinnati federal appeals court and was brought here after a hearing in which the government charged it had not been perfected and therefore was invalid.

Buckley's attorneys argued that a mere legal technicality was involved and that the appeal should be reviewed as having been perfected. The government opposed this, demanding the appeal be stricken from the records.

In taking up the case the appeals court had to reinstate the appeal or affirm Buckley's conviction, the latter was done on the ground that the appeal was invalidated.

The reason why the appeal was never perfected has never been explained. The government's action came as a complete surprise inasmuch as it was generally believed the appeal had been properly filed.

After hearing arguments from both sides the appeals court directed attorneys to file briefs in support of their contentions.

The case is now expected to go to the U. S. supreme court.

Edward Beck Morris of Charleston, West Virginia, will represent his State in the nation-wide examinations for the Thomas A. Edison scholarship which will entitle the winner to study under the great inventor with the opportunity to fill his shoes.

SIX BURNED WHEN METAL SPLASHED

CHICAGO, June 29.—Six men were burned, two of them seriously, when a huge steel beam fell into a tank of molten zinc at the Heaney Galvanizing Works today and splashed the white hot metal over a group of workers.

Thomas Meech, 51, and Joseph Biogalski, 50, were blinded by the molten zinc and probably will die, it was said at the hospital where they were taken.

PROBE SHOPLIFTERS

NEWARK, O., June 29.—Investigating of shop-lifting activities of eight grade and high school girls here, has implicated three other girls, one of whom was the "fence" for the others, according to juvenile authorities. The girls were said to have stolen loot valued at more than $2,000. Most of it was recovered.

Poems that Live

'Twas Ever Thus
(After Moore)

I NEVER reared a young gazelle,
(Because, you see, I never tried);
But had it known and loved me well,
No doubt the creature would have died.

My rich and aged Uncle John
Has known me long and loves me well
But still persists in living on—
I would he were a young gazelle.

I never loved a tree or flower;
But, if I had, I beg to say
The blight, the wind, the sun, or shower
Would soon have withered it away.

I've dearly loved my Uncle John,
From childhood to the present hour,
And yet he will go living on—
I would he were a tree or flower!

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE EYE THAT SEES GOD—Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.—Matthew 5:8.

DAWES' VIEWS SPEECH JAPAN

The reaction in Japan to the speeches of Ambassador Dawes and Prime Minister MacDonald has been promptly and emphatically favorable. The dispatches indicate that this is true of officialdom from Premier Tanaka down. Although the official spokesman for the Japanese navy expressed the opinion that Mr. Dawes' yardstick may as a practical matter be more difficult to find than some civilians think, he expressed the willingness of his department to co-operate in a renewed attempt for limitation. And the foreign office spokesman declared that there is no dissenting voice in the chorus of Japanese approval of the Dawes-MacDonald statements, and no feeling that the Anglo-Saxons are trying to "boss the show." Japan stands ready to do its part.

This is gratifying to those interested in world peace, but it also is the attitude that was to be expected from the government in Tokio. From the beginning of the world effort for limitation and reduction of armament, the Japanese have manifested a straightforward spirit of co-operation. They have been reasonable and sportsmanlike. They never have balked, shown "temperament" or obstructed proceedings. And they have kept every engagement scrupulously and honorably. Where they have raised questions, it has been because they have had legitimate ground for doing so. They contributed materially to the success of the Washington conference.

ENMITY THAT WON'T HURT

President Hoover seems to have the odd notion that a man must have some genuine legal and mental qualifications in order to be appointed to the federal judiciary.

The president has aroused the ill-will of a number of party leaders recently because of this notion of his. They have a way of recommending party hacks for appointment—men, often, who have no more business on the bench than so many mechanics. Because President Hoover ignores their wishes, they are filling the air with protests.

A man can generally be judged by the enemies he makes. Using that measuring stick, the American people will presently be giving President Hoover even more of their esteem and admiration than he already has. For the presidents we remember the longest and most fondly are generally the ones who made enemies of the political old guard.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, June 27.—After three years of engaging wise-cracking Jimmy Walker, the Best Dressed Mayor New York ever had, says he doesn't want to be known as the Town Clown.

Lord Jim isn't a clown by any means. He's a highly capable and intelligent young man—a bit of a dreamer, whose hand is perpetually and everlastingly going down into his own pocket to help some poor devil jammed in a corner somewhere—a genial philosopher—endowed with the divine gift of rain-bowing tear drops.

Uttering the truth lightly or uttering it seriously, is like uttering it in French or English. The only difference is that a joke may contain the entire earthly idea, as well as the whole heavenly sense of any situation. For humor, in its last analysis, is merely reason seasoned with laughter.

After a good many years on the sidelines, this Reviewer of the Passing Show is convinced of this fact. That sincerity and ponderosity seldom travel on the same side of the street.

The mere fact that Lord Jim is trying to duck the laurels of the Smile Coaxer is proof positive of the validity of his title.

There never yet lived a weaver of lightome lines who didn't quarrel with fate in an endeavor to change the combination and strive for distinction in leaky and lachrymose endeavor.

Ring Lardner nourishes the secret ambition to write tragedies. The dream of New York's cleverest veteran working newspaper man is some day to be able to shift his fingers from the keyboard of his typewriter to the long, shiny, prose handles of a plough.

Nat Goodwin, one of the greatest comedians that ever graced the stage, couldn't be dissuaded from making an ass of himself by essaying the role of Shylock.

Take it from Mr. S.: "Motley's the only wear."

GROVER! GROVER!

Manhattan's fleet of 21,000 taxis is to be augmented by a flock of four passenger Ford cars.

Police Commissioner Grover Whelan met a representative of the other day, of the Eminent Thinsmith of Detroit, to discuss the proposition and take a ride in one of the abbreviated buses. When he got back to police headquarters he expressed himself as "ticked to death with his journey."

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

MODERN SOME MODERNISTS

Some preachers who pride themselves that they do not preach an outworn theology and beliefs that are fading out of mind, have not succeeded in building up a philosophy of life that is sufficiently appealing or constructive to appeal to young people in this changed world in which we live. An attack of old beliefs, a declaration in favor of modern opinions in mere generalities, or a weak, negative preaching are worse than useless in this day when boys and girls ask more questions than their fathers and mothers did.

The old-fashioned Sunday school lesson and the old-fashioned preaching do not meet today's problems and today's needs. But neither does negative preaching or the expression of trite generalities. It is the principal business of the pulpit today, in the humble opinion of this writer, to show that Christianity is not a dogma or a system of religion but a way of life.

BOOKS

When a man has written a book he has attained a kind of distinction, so his friends think. He thinks so himself. And yet, go into a large bookstore and look over the counters and you see hundreds of books that are neither worth writing nor reading. There are frequently books on subjects to which the writers have nothing new to contribute. There are other books which over-state and exaggerate to such a degree that they present no true picture of life. It is not a worthy distinction to have written a book. It is a distinction to have written a book that is worth reading.

A TIP

Now and then the writer of this column recommends a book. It isn't done very often—only when the writer is sure the book is interesting, stimulating and helpful. The tip today is not on a 1929 book but on one that is perhaps a couple of years old. It is called "The Meaning of a Liberal Education," by Everett Dean Martin. If you have any doubt as to what education is, the doubt will be cleared up in this book. Dr. Martin may say things with which we will not all agree, but he will shovel a vast quantity of bunk out of our minds.

LABOR VICTORY VIEWED AS BRINGING WORLD PEACE NEARER

By PETER WITT

Traction Expert and Political Leader (Peter Witt was born at Cleveland, O., August 1869, the son of a German revolutionary who immigrated to the United States in 1849. He left school at the age of 13 to learn the iron moulder's trade. After several years he became associated with the late Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, was a member of the Cleveland Tax school and later city clerk. In 1912 he was named street railway commissioner by former Mayor Newton D. Baker, introducing several innovations in the one-cent car line and front-entrance, center-exit street car which he designed. Defeated for mayor of Cleveland in 1916 on the Democratic ticket, he retired as a traction consulting expert. He served as a member of the Cleveland city council two terms. In 1928 he ran for governor of Ohio but failed of nomination.)

The Labor party victory in England and selection of Ramsay MacDonald as premier is the greatest step for world peace since the armistice.

During the World war in England when everybody was crazy, MacDonald had his troubles. He was as great a pacifist as Eugene V. Debs. When the Versailles conference was held in 1919, MacDonald was eking out a living writing articles for newspapers, and not a soul from England would speak to him in Paris.

And now this despised pacifist who had the courage to remain neutral during the war, is prime minister of England, a position greater than shows England's way of reflecting in her government a change in sentiment.

What MacDonald did with Nurse Edith Cavell's monument is typical of the man. The Conservative government erected the monument with only this inscription: "Edith Cavell, Brussels, dawn, Oct. 12, 1915." It was an inscription bound to inspire hatred. But when MacDonald came in, in 1924, the first thing he did was to add her last words: "Patriotism is not enough. I must have no bitterness or hatred for anyone."

I don't object to the English having a king. It's harmless mummery and the only way to keep the empire together, by having a symbol. He's a nice fellow, who gets good pay, and God knows he deserves it, for he changes clothes 40 times a day. The Prince of Wales is a good kid, and they tell me he's a good orator.

We talk about democracy, but they have it in England. In Washington, there is now social warfare among women whose only distinction is that they have never soiled their hands in dishwater. But when MacDonald appointed a miner to his cabinet in 1924, the miners' wife had never been in a home better than a miner's hut, yet she was received as an equal in British cabinet circles.

With 615 members, parliament naturally has more dumb-bells than we do, but it also has leaders. When I see the leaders there I am ashamed of congress. In England a boy at 21 can say he is going to have a political career.

SMALLER CURRENCY ISN'T ANYTHING NEW

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

In the summer every skin, be it youthful or mature, oily, normal or dry, has two outstanding beauty needs. The wise woman will overlook neither, if she values her good looks during not only this season, but in the months to come. The first I have spoken of before, briefly, but since it is so important, I shall mention it again. It is nourishing.

The sun has exactly the same effect on your skin that excessive heat would have on any delicate texture. It bakes it and dries out the natural moisture. You know what happens to a piece of bread when you toast it. The very same thing happens to your skin. Only, in addition, your skin, after it has been baked, is especially susceptible to lines and wrinkles. Particularly the sharp, ugly little squint lines that form around your eyes.

To restore the natural oils which have been dried out in this process you must use some type of lubricating cream. This precaution is important at all seasons, since even the most casual exposure to the outdoor elements in the spring, winter or fall, will prove somewhat drying. But in the summer the drying tendency of air and wind is intensified, and your beauty care, to meet it, must be doubly effective.

For the young or normal skin, a rich, cleansing cream will be enough—either a pasteurized face cream or a light cleansing and massage cream, or a cream made on a base of water-lily juice. Always cleanse with this cream after continued exposure to the outdoor air, rather than with soap and water, or even a washing preparation and water. Your skin is likely to be irritated by this exposure, and soap and water cleansing would only irritate it more. The cream, on the contrary, is soothing, and while it cleanses the pores of every bit of dust and grime, it also lubricates the skin, replacing natural oils.

If by chance your skin is not young or normal—if it is very dry, instead, or lined, you will be wise to add also to your list of skin essentials a rich, nourishing cream, such as a good anti-wrinkle cream. This should be patted in around the eyes and throat, or wherever there are lines, and retained all night. It will nourish the tissues and restore a youthful, soft look to your skin.

The second need of your skin is for bleaching. Any dark, so-called liver spots, or other discolorations—as well as tan and freckles—come out most noticeably at this season. I have stressed the importance of protective measures to be sure that they do not come again. An active bleaching cream will do the work when properly applied. But I am going to list, also, two excellent home remedies.

The first consists of peroxide diluted with from three to five times as much water. Or combined with one part of lemon juice and one part of water. Should this irritate the skin wash a solution of boric acid and warm water and use instead the following: Two ounces of butter-milk, mixed with one-third of ounce of horse-radish, grated, and one ounce of cornmeal. Spread the mixture between two pieces of thin muslin and allow to remain on the parts to be bleached as long as possible, preferably over night.

Be careful to keep it away from the eyes, as it has a tendency to irritate them.

Follow these simple rules carefully through the summer, and you will do much toward prolonging into later life the health and youth of your skin.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, gets no vacation this year.

Next after Chairman Reed Smoot of Utah, Senator Watson is the highest-up member of the senate finance committee, which is busy putting the finishing touches on its tariff bill—the one passed in its crude form by the house of representatives a few weeks ago, and then handed over to the senate expert to put the polish on.

In fact, when the extra session recessed the other day, and the rest of the senators and all the representatives beat it for the seashore or the mountains, it was with the understanding that the tariff specialists were to stay here and sweeter tinkering with that bill.

It is especially hard on Senator Watson because his job had been a grueling one already, during the first leg of the extra session, as the G. O. P.'s new senate leader.

There are peculiar reasons why it has been an unusually difficult job, too—with Herbert Hoover in the White House.

At the last regular session, when Senator Charles Curtis (since retired into the vice presidency) held the G. O. P. leadership, the "organization" and President Coolidge got on together pretty well. True, the organization never had counted Mr. Coolidge as one of its own. Still, he was a practical politician and unquestionably a Republican. He and the organization spoke the same language, at least.

Senator Watson and President Hoover have trouble even understanding each other—politically.

Senator Watson is a "party man." He is for the G. O. P., ahead of any individual, including himself, the president—anybody.

There is no doubt that he suspects Mr. Hoover of holding himself above the party—outside of it, indeed, unless it agrees with him. In short, he is skeptical of Mr. Hoover's 100 per cent Republicanism.

Before the Kansas City convention he said so. Now he has to keep quiet about it, but it is evident that he is as skeptical as ever he was.

Politically speaking, the ideal thing for a party organization is to pick its presidential candidate out of its own ranks, put him in the White House, and run the whole government—executive, legislative and, as far as possible, the judicial branch, too—as one single system, all operated from the same central plant.

This by no means was provided for at Kansas City. The organization had to accept Mr. Hoover because of circumstances entirely beyond its control. It supported him throughout the campaign because it preferred that to having the opposition party win, but it was afraid of him all the time.

Its worst fears have been realized. It does not like President Hoover's appointments, or his policies or, hardly anything he does.

The organization's antagonism to Mr. Hoover is more obvious in the senate than in the house of representatives. The representatives are against him on some questions; not on all. The senate is against him on all.

For instance, the representatives gave him the kind of farm bill he asked for, but are trying to stick him with a much higher, wider tariff than he wants.

The senate has voted against him on both propositions.

Its majories had to flop back and forth in order to do it, but that is just what they did do.

The senators had a radical spell when he was advocating conservative action on the farm debenture issue. They turned very conservative when he took a progressive position on the tariff.

The situation presents a mean problem for Leader Watson.

On the one hand, G. O. P.-elected president whose "regularity" he distrusts! On the other hand, an uncertain senate majority—and that unmanageable! In the middle, the danger of emphasizing a conflict between the Capitol and the White House!

Well, Watson will steer a safe course between Scylla and Charybdis if anyone can.

Big, imposing, dignified and majestic, able, experienced, always amiable, always seemingly perfectly sure of himself—it is a fine sight to watch the Indiana statesman at the organization helm in the United States chamber. He knows his politics, anyway.

Today's Recipes
Scrambled Eggs and Bacon—Beat the desired number of eggs lightly with one tablespoon cream or top milk for each egg, and season with salt and pepper. Pour the mixture into a pan containing one tablespoon melted butter. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove and serve with crisp bacon.

Rice Griddle Cakes—One level cup flour, three-fourths cups cooked rice, three level teaspoons baking powder, one egg well beaten, one level teaspoonful salt, two level teaspoonsful sugar, one-half cup of milk, one tablespoonful melted butter. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add rice and melted butter, the egg (well beaten) and milk to make the batter Beat well. Cook at once on a hot, well-greased griddle. Serve hot with butter and syrup. The addition of an extra egg makes these griddle cakes unusually delicious.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

A SAFE FOURTH

Are you anticipating buying fireworks for the children, for the Fourth? Don't do it! Read the following article, written by Dr. Louis I. Harris, for the Weekly Bulletin of the City of New York Health Department, two years ago. I give it to make you realize the danger.

"The Laboratories of the Department of Health, and many other laboratories as well, are busy now preparing many gallons of antitoxin to be used by the physicians in hospitals throughout the country to prevent lockjaw resulting from burns and injuries caused by fireworks. Without question tens of thousands in this country will have to submit to the administration of this preventive agent because of injuries due to fireworks. Otherwise the deaths due to lockjaw would be enormous. Lockjaw, however, is not the only danger which results from the utterly ancient manner of celebrating the Fourth of July.

"Every place where fireworks are offered for sale constitutes a serious menace to those living or working in the vicinity, and to the general public. The nerve-racking din which begins several weeks before July 4th is in itself a nuisance and a serious cause of annoyance and irritation, especially to the sick. The storage of fireworks in homes in anticipation of July 4th constitutes a very serious hazard.

"It has been impossible to ascertain, with any approach to accuracy, how much damage is done in the City of New York through celebration of the day with fireworks and firearms.

"We have canvassed the hospitals of this City but find that the records of the injuries that were caused in previous years were practically limited to those which were of a very serious nature. Eighty such serious injuries occurred on July 4th last year (1926) as the result of wounds inflicted by bullets, cartridges, toy pistols and by the handling of cannon or shell that had seemingly exploded. Some serious burns were also listed in this group. We hope to get a more accurate tally of the major and minor injuries treated by private physicians and by the medical institutions of this city.

"It is exceedingly important that people shall get a city wide view of the damages resulting from the use of fireworks. From June 30th to July 6th last year (1926) there were 130 fires in this city, which the fire commissioner reports were started by fireworks. It was estimated that the amount of damages to buildings and furnishings and equipment of various homes and establishments aggregated $22,365. This probably falls far short of the true figure. . . . If it were not for the effective and prompt work of the fire department the losses from this source would be ever so much greater.

"With so many ways of celebrating and enjoying the holiday in a sane, healthful and intelligent way, grown-up folks ought to stop purchasing fireworks of all kinds and set a proper example to children. The plea is based upon the loss of life, the disabilities and suffering, and the injuries to property which the use of fireworks cause.

"In the absence of laws to prevent the sale of fireworks, we must appeal to the intelligence and good judgment of those who are interested in protecting children and others from the dangers which result from the survival of this primitive mode of celebrating a unique and significant holiday.

Do celebrate in some other manner. Don't make the Glorious Fourth a Glorious Fourth.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

It's the little things that make living together a heaven or a hell. Most people are heroes or heroines when it comes to the big things, but in little matters, how irritating they can be!

Mothers and fathers would gladly give their lives for their children, but frequently how miserable they make those lives by nagging and fault finding.

Every once in awhile I get a letter from a young person in his or her teens who is ready to commit suicide because of unkind parents. Now we all know that youngsters are thoughtless and not nearly the help they might be to their parents, and very often they deserve the scoldings. But they don't realize this, and are convinced they are unloved victims.

"JUST DOROTHY" writes at too great length to print. She is 14 and her parents treat her "awful" at times, though at times "they treat me nice."

"I help my mother a lot, but, Virginia, the more I help the worse I get treated."

Dorothy declares that the only reason she hasn't committed suicide before is because she "hated to part with a few of my girl friends, but I am not going to think of them any more."

If you read the answer I gave to "Nobody's Child" you know what I would say to you, Dorothy. "Self pity is mental tuberculosis," some one told me once. So the thing for you to do is to think that, badly off as you are, there are persons whose condition is worse.

You do know in your heart, don't you, dear, that your parents love you? It doesn't seem quite sporting to me to kill one's self. If we are not happy, at least we can do our work. There will come a time when you will no longer have to live at home but can make your own way in the world.

And, just as I told "Nobody's Child," there are lots of good times ahead of you, so why not try to smile, in spite of your unhappiness, and wait for them?

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

POOR FLY!

Mrs. Spider stopped in her advance upon Peter and stared at him hard, with all her bulging eyes. And if the truth was known Mrs. Spider's thoughts ran something like this:

"You never can tell by appearances! At first sight I took this boy to be an enemy and was going to bite him. And now he offers to help me feed my brood of babies. No enemy would do that. I guess the most sensible thing to do would be to take the fellow at his word and count him a friend." Aloud, Mrs. Spider said:

"I am sorry I was in such a hurry to find fault with you, boy. I find I was mistaken, you are kind, not cruel, after all. Maybe at another season, I shouldn't have been in such a suspicious mood towards strangers, but right now when I am so anxious to have a house all in order for the babies—and it isn't even built yet—if only you knew how anxious I am! However that's my affair and Sam's. You certainly sound like a very decent sort of chap."

If you will bring us flies to eat, that will certainly be most kind of you. It is hard for us Spiders to catch enough to eat of late and I can't understand why. Flies used to be so plentiful. Maybe the reason fewer flies fly our way is because you Humans are destroying them. An old aunt of mine is very wise. The other day when she and I were out for a crawl we saw a queer sign. Aunt can't speak but she can read and understand the Two-Legs language (all her life she has lived under a farmer's front porch) and Aunt said the sign read 'Swat the fly.' 'What does that mean?' I asked, and aunt said that it was a command to every Two-Legs to make an end to every fly he could catch. Is that right?

"Yes mam," answered Peter who half expected the peppery Mrs. Spider to lose her temper again. "But you see, flies bite our babies and make them sick and walk all over our food and spoil it for us. We just have to stop the flies from doing so much damage!"

Mrs. Spider nodded. "Flies are pests," agreed she. "I don't blame you Two-Legs for wanting to rid the world of them. We do, too, only we think the most sensible way of wiping them off the earth is to eat them. From what you tell me I'm afraid there's to be a shortage of food this season. What we can find to take their place I don't know. Any help that you can bring us will help us out a good deal!"

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE EYE THAT SEES GOD—Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.—Matthew 5:8.

DAWES' VIEWS SPEECH JAPAN

The reaction in Japan to the speeches of Ambassador Dawes and Prime Minister MacDonald has been promptly and emphatically favorable. The dispatches indicate that this is true of officialdom from Premier Tanaka down. Although the official spokesman for the Japanese navy expressed the opinion that Mr. Dawes' yardstick may as a practical matter be more difficult to find than some civilians think, he expressed the willingness of his department to co-operate in a renewed attempt for limitation. And the foreign office spokesman declared that there is no dissenting voice in the chorus of Japanese approval of the Dawes-MacDonald statements, and no feeling that the Anglo-Saxons are trying to "boss the show." Japan stands ready to do its part.

This is gratifying to those interested in world peace, but it also is the attitude that was to be expected from the government in Tokio. From the beginning of the world effort for limitation and reduction of armament, the Japanese have manifested a straightforward spirit of co-operation. They have been reasonable and sportsmanlike. They never have balked, shown "temperament" or obstructed proceedings. And they have kept every engagement scrupulously and honorably. Where they have raised questions, it has been because they have had legitimate ground for doing so. They contributed materially to the success of the Washington conference.

ENMITY THAT WON'T HURT

President Hoover seems to have the odd notion that a man must have some genuine legal and mental qualifications in order to be appointed to the federal judiciary.

The president has aroused the ill-will of a number of party leaders recently because of this notion of his. They have a way of recommending party hacks for appointment—men, often, who have no more business on the bench than so many mechanics. Because President Hoover ignores their wishes, they are filling the air with protests.

A man can generally be judged by the enemies he makes. Using that measuring stick, the American people will presently be giving President Hoover even more of their esteem and admiration than he already has. For the presidents we remember the longest and most fondly are generally the ones who made enemies of the political old guard.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, June 27.—After three years of engaging wide-cracking Jimmy Walker, the Best Pressed Mayor New York ever had, says he doesn't want to be known as the Town Clown.

Lord Jim isn't a clown by any means. He's a highly capable and intelligent young man—a bit of a dreamer, whose hand is perpetually and everlastingly going down into his own pocket to help some poor devils—a genial philosopher endowed with the divine gift of rain-bowing tear drops.

Uttering the truth lightly or uttering it seriously is all uttering it in French or English. The only difference is that a joke may contain the entire earthly idea, as well as the whole heavenly sense of any situation. For humor, in its last analysis, is merely reason seasoned with laughter.

After a good many years on the sidelines, this Reviewer of the Passing Show is convinced of this fact: That sincerity and ponderosity seldom travel on the same side of the street.

The mere fact that Lord Jim is trying to duck the laurels of the Smile Coaster is proof positive of the validity of his title.

There never yet lived a weaver of lightness lines who didn't quarrel with fate in an endeavor to change the combination and strive for distinction in leaky and labyrinthous endeavor.

Ring Lardner nourishes the secret ambition to write tragedies. The dream of New York's cleverest veteran working newspaper man is some day to be able to shift his fingers from the keyboard of his typewriter to the long, shiny, prosaic handles of a plough.

Nat Goodwin, one of the greatest comedians that ever graced the stage, couldn't be dissuaded from making an ass of himself by essaying the role of Shylock.

Take it from Mr. S.: "Motley's the only wear."

GROVER! GROVER!

Manhattan's fleet of 21,000 taxis is to be augmented by a flock of four passenger Ford cabs. Police Commissioner Grover Whalen met a representative of the other day, of the Eminent Thimble of Detroit, to discuss the proposition and take a ride in one of the abbreviated buses. When he got back to police headquarters he expressed himself as "ticked to death with his journey."

Gorgeous Grover in a Ford car. A Tecla pearl in a Woolworth setting.

BOUNCING BROADWAY

If they don't repair some of the bumps and hollows in the city's highways before the Ford Bouncers join the main body of the Pirate Fleet it won't be long before the region of Father Knickerbocker's hip pocket will be taking on the appearance of a Swiss sunset.

After you've jounced for half an hour or more over Manhattan's billowy asphalt on the rear piazza of one of Hank's Hints, you begin to realize why taxi fare doesn't include an amusement tax.

A BOOK ON JOHN D.

Jack Winkler, the biographer of Willie Hearst, has turned his discerning attention to Mr. Rockefeller. The book, just out, is called "John D.—A Portrait in Oils," and is tastefully tucked between covers by Old Jim Henly, directing genius of the Vanguard Press.

The jacket contains a picture of Jawn on the links, golf cap, blue goggles and all, handing a dime to an expectant caddy. It may be of interest to bookstore anglers to know that they'll get back at least a part of their bait, for the dime embedded in the cover is a real dime.

Some philosopher once got up in meeting to remark that if you'll walk around a human skeleton you'll never thereafter be able to take yourself seriously.

The pastor's advice to the Pew-birds therefore is this: "Grab Mr. Winkler's hand and walk with him once around Rockefeller."

But if you insist upon taking yourself too seriously, shun the book as a Follies Girl shuns a scallop.

TIME CHANGES VIEW

In the 1929 edition of "Who's Who" motion picture players, writers and directors are recognized as cultural factors in the life of America.

A few years back only two screen celebrities were mentioned, Chaplin and D. W. Griffith. In its list of "constructive celebrities" this year's volume lists Tully Gilbert, Conal Nagel, Ramon Novarro, Elkanor Boardman, John Marshall, Hobart Bosworth, Mary Pickford, D. W. Griffith, Charlie Chaplin, Norma and Constance Talmadge, George Fawcett and Alfred Allen.

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

MODERN SOME MODERNISTS

Some preachers who pride themselves that they do not preach an outworn theology and beliefs that are fading out of mind, have not succeeded in building up a philosophy of life that is sufficiently appealing or constructive to appeal to young people in this changed world in which we live. An attack of old beliefs, a declaration in favor of modern opinions in mere generalities, or a weak, negative preaching are worse than useless in this day when boys and girls ask more questions than their fathers and mothers did.

The old-fashioned Sunday school lesson and the old-fashioned preaching do not meet today's problems and today's needs. But neither does negative preaching or the expression of true generalities. It is the principal business of the pulpit today, in the humble opinion of this writer, to show that Christianity is not a dogma or a system of religion but a way of life.

BOOKS

When a man has written a book he has attained a kind of distinction, so his friends think. He thinks so himself. And yet, go into a large bookstore and look over the counters and you see hundreds of books that are neither worth writing nor reading. There are frequently books on subjects to which the writers have nothing new to contribute. There are other books which overstate and exaggerate to such a degree that they present no true picture of life. It is not a worthy distinction to have written a book. It is a distinction to have written a book that is worth reading.

A TIP

Now and then the writer of this column recommends a book. It isn't done very often—only when the writer is sure the book is interesting, stimulating and helpful. The tip today is not on a 1929 book but on one that is perhaps a couple of years old. It is called "The Meaning of a Liberal Education" by Everett Dean Martin. If you have any doubt as to what education is, the doubt will be cleared up in this book. Dr. Martin may say things with which we will not all agree, but he will shovel a vast quantity of bunk out of our minds.

Who's Who and Timely Views

LABOR VICTORY VIEWED AS BRINGING WORLD PEACE NEARER

By PETER WITT

Traction Expert and Political Leader (Peter Witt was born in Cleveland, O., August 1869, the son of a German revolutionist who immigrated to the United States in 1848. He left school at the age of 13 to learn the iron moulder's trade. After several years he became associated with the late Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, was a member of the Cleveland Tax school and later city clerk. In 1912 he was named street railway commissioner by former Mayor Newton D. Baker. Introducing several innovations including the one-cent car line and front-entrance, center-exit street cars which he designed. Defeated for mayor of Cleveland in 1916 on the Democratic ticket, he retired as a traction consulting expert. He served as a member of the Cleveland city council two terms. In 1928 he ran for governor of Ohio but failed of nomination.)

The Labor party victory in England and selection of Ramsay MacDonald as premier is the greatest step for world peace since the armistice.

During the World War in England, when everybody was crazy, MacDonald had his troubles. He was as great a pacifist as Eugene V. Debs. When the Versailles conference was held in 1919, MacDonald was eking out a living writing articles for newspapers, and not a soul from England would speak to him in Paris.

And now this despised pacifist who had the courage to remain one during the war, is prime minister of England, a position greater than president of the United States. It shows England's way of reflecting in her government a change in sentiment.

What MacDonald did with Nurse Edith Cavell's monument is typical of the man. The Conservative government erected the monument with only this inscription, "Edith Cavell, Brussels, dawn, Oct. 12, 1915." It was an inscription bound to inspire hatred. But when MacDonald came in, in 1924, the first thing he did was to add her last words: "Patriotism is not enough. I must have no bitterness or hatred for anyone."

I don't object to the English humping a king. It's harmless mummery and the only way to keep the empire together, by having a symbol. He's a nice fellow, who gets good pay, and God knows he deserves it, for he changes clothes 40 times a day. The Prince of Wales is a good kid, and they tell me he's a good orator.

We talk about democracy, but they have it in England. In Washington, there is now social warfare among women whose only distinction is that they have never sold their hands in dishwater. But when MacDonald appointed a miner to his cabinet in 1924, the miners' wife had never been in a home better than a miner's hut, yet she was received as an equal in British cabinet circles.

With 615 members, parliament naturally has more dumb-bells than we do, but it also has leaders. When I see the leaders there I am ashamed of congress. In England a boy at 21 can say he is going to have a political career.

SMALLER CURRENCY ISN'T ANYTHING NEW

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

In the summer every skin, be it youthful or mature, oily, normal or dry, has two outstanding beauty needs. The wise woman will overlook neither. If she values her good looks during not only this season, but in the months to come. The first I have spoken of before, briefly, but since it is so important, I shall mention it again. It is nourishing.

The sun has exactly the same effect on your skin that excessive heat would have on any delicate texture. It bakes it and dries out the natural moisture. You know what happens to a piece of bread when you toast it. The very same thing happens to your skin. Only, in addition, your skin, after it has baked, is especially susceptible to lines and wrinkles. Particularly the sharp, ugly little squint lines that form around your eyes.

To restore the natural oils which have been dried out in this process you must use some type of lubricating cream. This precaution is important at all seasons, since even the most casual exposure to the outdoor elements in the spring, winter or fall, will prove somewhat drying. But in the summer the drying tendency of air and wind is intensified, and your beauty care, to meet it, must be doubly effective.

For the young or normal skin, a rich, cleansing cream will be enough—either a pasteurized face cream or a light cleansing and massage cream, or a cream made on a base of water-lily juice. Always cleanse with this cream after continued exposure to the outdoor air, rather than with soap and water, or even a washing preparation and water. Your skin is likely to be irritated by this exposure, and soap and water cleansing would only irritate it more. The cream, on the contrary, is soothing, and while it cleanses the pores of every bit of dust and grime, it also lubricates the skin, replacing natural oils.

If by chance your skin is not young or normal—if it is very dry, instead, or lined, you will be wise to add also to your list of skin essentials a rich, nourishing cream, such as a good anti-wrinkle cream. This should be patted in around the eyes and throat, or wherever there are lines, and retained all night. It will nourish the tissues and restore a youthful, soft look to your skin.

The second need of your skin is for bleaching. Any dark, so-called liver spots, or other discolorations—as well as tan and freckles—come out most noticeably at this season. I have stressed the importance of protective measures to be sure they do not come again. An active bleaching cream will do the work when properly applied. But I am going to list, also, two excellent home remedies.

The first consists of peroxide diluted with water from three to five times as much water. Or combined with one part of lemon juice and one part of water. Should this irritate the skin wash a solution of boric acid and warm water and use instead the following: Two ounces of buttermilk, mixed with one-third ounce of horseradish, grated, and one ounce of cornmeal. Spread the mixture between two pieces of thin muslin and allow to remain on the parts to be bleached as long as possible, preferably over night.

Be careful to keep it away from the eyes, as it has a tendency to irritate them. Follow these simple rules carefully through the summer, and you will do much toward prolonging into later life the health and youth of your skin.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, gets no vacation this year.

Next after Chairman Reed Smoot of Utah, Senator Watson is the highest-up member of the senate finance committee, which is busy putting the finishing touches on the tariff bill—the one passed in its crude form by the house of representatives a few weeks ago, and then handed over to the senate expert to put the polish on.

In fact, when the extra session recessed the other day, and the rest of the senators and all the representatives beat it for the seashore or the mountains, it was with the understanding that the tariff specialists were to stay here and sweeter tinkering with that bill.

It is especially hard on Senator Watson because his job had been a grueling one already, during the first leg of the extra session, as the G. O. P.'s new senate leader.

There are peculiar reasons why it has been an unusually difficult job, too—with Herbert Hoover in the White House.

At the last regular session, when Senator Charles Curtis (since retired into the vice presidency) held the G. O. P. leadership, the "organization" and President Coolidge got together pretty well. True, the organization never had counted Mr. Coolidge as one of its own. Still, he was a practical politician and unquestionably a Republican. He and the organization spoke the same language, at least. Senator Watson and President Hoover have trouble even understanding each other—politically.

Senator Watson is a "party man." He is for the G. O. P. ahead of any individual, including himself, the president—anybody.

There is no doubt that he suspects Mr. Hoover of holding himself above the party—outside of it, indeed, unless it agrees with him. In short, he is skeptical of Mr. Hoover's 100 per cent Republicanism.

Before the Kansas City convention he said so. Now he has to keep quiet about it, but it is evident that he is as skeptical as ever he was.

Politically speaking, the ideal thing for a party organization is to pick its presidential candidate out of its own ranks, put him in the White House, and run the whole government—executive, legislative and, as far as possible, the judicial branch, too—as one single system, all operated from the same central plant.

This by no means was provided for the organization had to accept Mr. Hoover because of circumstances entirely beyond its control. It supported him throughout the campaign because it preferred that to having the opposition party win, but it was afraid of him all the time.

Its worst fears have been realized. It does not like President Hoover's appointments, or his policies or hardly anything he does.

The organization's antagonism to Mr. Hoover is more obvious in the senate than in the house of representatives. The representatives are against him on some questions; not on all. The senate is against him both ways from the middle.

For instance, the representatives gave him the kind of farm bill he asked for, but are trying to stick him with a much higher, wider tariff than he wants.

The senate has voted against him on both propositions. Its majorities had to flip back and forth in order to do it, but that is just what they did do. The senators had a radical spell when he was advocating conservative action on the farm debenture issue. They turned very conservative when he took a progressive position on the tariff.

The situation presents a mean problem for Leader Watson.

On the one hand, G. O. P.-elected president whose "regularity" he distrusts! On the other hand, an uncertain senate majority—and that is unmanageable! In the middle, the danger of emphasizing a conflict between the Capitol and the White House!

Well, Watson will steer a safe course between Scylla and Charybdis if anyone can.

Big, imposing, dignified and majestic, able, experienced, always amiable, always seemingly perfectly sure of himself—it is a fine sight to watch this Indiana statesman at the organization's helm in the United States chamber. He knows his politics, anyway.

Here is a meatless menu that would taste good any day in the year. Plenty of fresh vegetables, cooked and raw, and fruit are served. Wash the strawberries and serve with the hulls on with the powdered sugar, dipping each berry in the sugar before eating.

Today's Recipes

Scrambled Eggs and Bacon

Beat the desired number of eggs lightly with one tablespoon cream or top milk for each egg, and season with salt and pepper. Pour the mixture into a pan containing one tablespoon of melted butter. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove and serve with crisp bacon.

Rice Griddle Cakes—One level cup flour, three-fourths cup cooked rice, three level teaspoons baking powder, one egg well beaten, one level teaspoonful salt, two level teaspoonfuls sugar, one-half cup of milk, one tablespoonful melted butter. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add rice and melted butter, the egg (well beaten) and milk to make the batter. Beat well. Cook at once on a hot, well-greased griddle. Serve hot with butter and syrup. The addition of an extra egg makes these griddle cakes unusually delicious.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

A SAME FOURTH

Are you anticipating buying fireworks for the children, for the Fourth? Don't do it! Read the following article, written by Dr. Louis I. Harris, for the Weekly Bulletin of the City of New York Health Department, two years ago. I give it to make you realize the danger.

"The Laboratories of the Department of Health, and many other laboratories as well, are busy now preparing many gallons of antitoxin to be used by the physicians in hospitals throughout the country to prevent lockjaw resulting from burns and injuries caused by fireworks. Without question tens of thousands in this country will have to submit to the administration of this preventive agent because of injuries due to fireworks. Otherwise the deaths due to lockjaw would be enormous. Lockjaw, however, is not the only danger which results from the utterly ancient manner of celebrating the Fourth of July.

"Every place where fireworks are offered for sale constitutes a serious menace to those living or working in the vicinity, and to the gallant fire-fighters. The nerve racking din which begins several weeks before July 4th is in itself a nuisance and a serious cause of annoyance and irritation, especially to the sick. The storage of fireworks in homes in anticipation of July 4th constitutes a very serious hazard.

"It has been impossible to ascertain, with any approach to accuracy, how much damage is done in the City of New York through celebration of the day with fireworks and firearms.

"We have canvassed the hospitals of this City but find that the records of the injuries that were caused in previous years were practically limited to those which were of a very serious nature. Eighty such serious injuries occurred on July 4th last year (1926) as the result of wounds inflicted by bullets, cartridges, toy pistols and by the handling of cannon or shell that had seemingly exploded. Some serious burns were also listed in this group. We hope to get a more accurate tally of the major and minor injuries treated by private physicians and by the medical institutions of this city.

"It is exceedingly important that people shall get a city wide view of the damages resulting from the use of fireworks. From June 30th to July 6th last year (1926) there were 130 fires in this city, which the fire commissioner reports were started by fireworks. It was estimated that the amount of damages to buildings and furnishings and equipment of various homes and establishments aggregated $22,365. This probably falls far short of the true figure. . . . If it were not for the effective and prompt work of the fire department the losses from this source would be ever so much greater.

"With so many ways of celebrating and enjoying the holiday in a sane, healthful and intelligent way, grown-up folks ought to stop purchasing fireworks of all kinds and description and set a proper example to children. The plea is based upon the loss of life, the disabilities and suffering, and the injuries to property which the use of fireworks causes.

"In the absence of laws to prevent the sale of fireworks, we must appeal to the intelligence and good judgment of those who are interested in protecting children and others from the dangers which result from the survival of this primitive mode of celebrating a unique and significant holiday."

Do celebrate in some other manner. Don't make the Glorious Fourth a Glorious Fire.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

It's the little things that make living together a heaven or a hell. Most people are heroes or heroines when it comes to the big things, but in little matters, how irritating they can be!

Mothers and fathers would gladly give their lives for their children, but frequently how miserable they make those lives by nagging and fault finding.

Every once in awhile I get a letter from a young person in his or her teens who is ready to commit suicide because of unkind parents. Now we all know that youngsters are thoughtless and not nearly as help they must be to their parents, and very often they deserve the scoldings. But they don't realize this, and are convinced they are unloved victims.

"JUST DOROTHY" writes at too great length to print. She is 14 and her parents treat her "awful" at times, though at times "they treat me nice."

"I help my mother a lot, but, Virginia, the more I help the worse I get treated."

Dorothy declares that the only reason she hasn't committed suicide before is because she "hated to part with a few of my girl friends, but I am not going to think of them any more."

If you read the answer I gave to "Nobody's Child" you know what I would say to you, Dorothy. "Self pity is mental tuberculosis," some one told me once. So the thing for you to do is to think that, badly off as you are, there are persons whose condition is worse.

You do know in your heart, don't you, dear, that your parents love you? It doesn't seem quite sporting to me to kill one's self. If we are not happy, at least we can do our work. There will come a time when you will no longer have to live at home but can make your own way in the world.

And, just as I told "Nobody's Child," there are lots of good times ahead of you, so why not try to smile, in spite of your unhappiness, and wait for them?

BROWN EYES: I think it quite probable that your love and that of your boy friend is what is usually called "puppy love." Time alone can tell that, but it is usual at your age. Your parents fear that if you go with this boy alone you will get notions of marrying into your head. I don't think it likely, but such things do happen, and, of course, that would not be so good. I don't see what you can do about it except to refuse the other boy's invitations, and then, if the boy you love gets over his friendship for you—and so many, many little girls write me that their boy friends have done that very thing—you would be left friendless. Really and truly, I do think a little girl who owes all she has to her parents, should try to please them as much as possible. Don't you?

I. N. T. M.: I cannot see how you would gain very much in marrying your second husband, even if he is sorry for his former treatment of you and your little girl and wants to do better, especially as you love another man. Your relatives don't live your life for you, you know, and it does seem to me if you love this man and he loves you and you think you can be happy with him, you should disregard what your people say.

If your mother does not like the man you love, cannot she go to live with one of the other daughters? Be sure, however, after two failures in matrimony, that you are pretty sure of happiness in this third venture.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 15 and my parents do not allow me to go out with boys. Do you think there is any harm in a boy talking to me with me? Do you think I should be home before dark?"

"UNDECIDED." I see no harm in the boy talking to your gate with you, dear, but I'd try to be in before dark, as your parents wish.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Many fans were of the opinion that Swanson, the fleet outfielder for the Cincinnati Reds, would be just another flash in the pan, but they were only partly right. The rookie gardener is admittedly a flash—but not in the pan. He has developed into another Simpson when it comes to circling the bases.

Just as an indication of his speed and daring, Swanson stole third base in the game with Pittsburgh Friday, the theft coming on the first pitched ball when Jess Petty stepped to the box. On another occasion in the same game he made another attempt to swipe the third sack but was out by a step on a close play. The other day he almost got away with an effort to steal home with the bases full.

Swanson is not a reckless runner either but is always on the outlook for a chance to steal bases and to stretch his legs at every possible opportunity. He keeps opposing pitchers in a constant state of anxiety when he gets on base, which is often.

America's leading export to France in recent years has been silver loving cups offered in tennis tournaments. The Davis Cup went over in 1927 and still remains there. For the last three years Rene Lacoste and Cochet have been taking turns winning the national singles title and this year M. Borotra walked off with the indoor championship cup permanently only four years after it was put in circulation. When any of the three French racket stars are entered in a tournament in this country its sponsors immediately take steps to procure another cup.

Paul Fuller, this city and Newt Murrell, Bowersville, played on the baseball team representing the Cincinnati Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which defeated the St. Louis Division nine in an annual classic at St. Louis Thursday. The score was 20 to 17, indicating it was no pitcher's battle. Murrell played Sunday baseball with the Bowersville Bayliffs and also plays on the Hooven and Allison Co. team in the American Softball League here.

ANY TEAM MAY WIN AS LEAGUE TEAMS REACH HALF-WAY MARK

Half of the 1929 season in the two softball leagues will be over with the completion of games scheduled for next week, marking the end of the third round of play. At this stage of the race in both leagues, it appears that the ultimate league championships may become the property of almost any of the contending teams.

In the National League, Harness Club and the Downtown Country Club, the two leaders, both received drubbings this week from second division nines, the Downtowners losing to the Lang Chevrolet Co. and Harness to Xenia Central High. The D. T. C. Club, however, still has a one-game lead.

The Hooven and Allison Co. and Post Office remain tied for leadership of the American League.

Next week the H. and A. meets Coates Barber Shop Monday night, the D. T. C. Club plays Central High Tuesday night, Rotary opposes the Post Office Wednesday night and Harness plays Langs Friday night. The latter game was scheduled for Thursday but because of the July 4 holiday will be played Friday instead.

Standing in the National League follows:

Team	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
D. T. C. Club	6	2	.750
Harness	5	3	.625
Langs	4	4	.500
Central High	1	7	.125

Standing in the American League follows:

Team	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
H. and A.	5	3	.625
Post Office	5	3	.625
Coates	4	4	.500
Rotary	2	6	.250

General Crowder allowed the Chicago White Sox but five hits and the St. Louis Browns strengthened their hold on first place with a 7 to 2 victory.

A wild throw in the eighth by Shea, Detroit catcher, permitted Oe Sewell to score with the winning run and Cleveland beat the Tigers, 5 to 4.

A costly error by Goose Goslin permitted two runners to score and helped the Boston Red Sox beat Washington, 5 to 2.

No other games were played.

LUCAS WORKS JINX OVER PITTSBURGH; MAKES TENTH WIN

Yesterday's hero—Pat Malone, whose pitching and hitting helped the Chicago Cubs beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 9 to 5, and gain the National League lead. He hit a home run with two men on base in the second inning when the Cubs scored seven runs.

Red Lucas, Pittsburgh jinx, pitched Cincinnati to a 10 to 3 victory over the Pirates which cost the latter the National League lead. He has won his last ten games from the Pirates.

A crowd of 15,000 saw the Chicago White Sox but five hits and the St. Louis Browns strengthened their hold on first place with a 7 to 2 victory.

A wild throw in the eighth by Shea, Detroit catcher, permitted Oe Sewell to score with the winning run and Cleveland beat the Tigers, 5 to 4.

A costly error by Goose Goslin permitted two runners to score and helped the Boston Red Sox beat Washington, 5 to 2.

STRANGE AS IT MAY SEEM—

Five years ago Max Schmeling had a dream that he was going to be a world's heavyweight champion. He was working in the coal mines at the time so he dropped his pick and got himself a pair of boxing gloves. He's been fighting ever since. Minneapolis in 1924, then a member of the old Western League, cracked out 218 home runs. And the rabbit ball wasn't in existence in those old days. Miller Huggins holds a world's baseball record. He made it while playing second base for St. Paul. On Sept. 17, 1902, Miller accepted nineteen chances. The original Jack Dempsey, known as the Nonpareil fought sixty-two fights in six years without losing a one. He died just thirty-four years ago. Edmund Lamy on Jan. 30, 1913, jumped twenty-five feet, seven inches, on top of Saranac Lake, N. Y. A. Cutler, of Louisville, Ky., pulled his body up by his little finger six times. This great sporting event occurred on Sept. 18, 1878. Frank Marlow, New York night club owner, slaved on Long Island, is reported to have won $900,000 in a season betting on the ponies.

ARREST SUSPECTS IN GANG SHOOTING

AKRON, O., June 29.—Three new suspects—two men and a woman—were held by police headquarters today as detectives investigated the assassination of Frank Bellini, reputed underworld leader. Bellini was shot and killed Wednesday by gunmen who sped past his establishment in a curtained automobile. An underworld feud is believed responsible.

Funeral services for Bellini will be held late today.

Virginia Wilson, pretty golfer of Chicago, Ill., broke out with a rash of birdies and burned up the Allegheny country club course at Pittsburgh to lower the world's low score for women with a 71, just one stroke lower than Joyce Wethered, formerly held the record. Miss Wilson's score is eight under women's par for the course.

Two players on the team, who haven't been used nearly as much as they might have been, are the cause of much of the "shakeup" discussion. One is infielder Bill Hunefeld and the other is Art Shires, first baseman.

Hunefeld, a good second baseman and a fair hitter when used regularly, has been out of most of the games and it has been said that his position with the Sox is not as "substantial" at it might be.

Shires, a confident rookie who can play baseball, knows he can play it and isn't backward about saying so, got into trouble with the management before the season started because of his training camp antics.

As a result he has been in only a few games when the team probably could have been strengthened by his help.

Then there was the trade which sent Bill Barrett to Boston for Bill Tait. It is rumored now that the Sox might have obtained Rothrock instead of Tait. The fans are asking why Rothrock didn't come here for he has outlived Tait.

RELEASE SUSPECT
COLUMBUS, O., June 29.—Edwin Figner, 36, local pharmacist, was at liberty today after physicians definitely determined a sleeping powder was responsible for the death of Pauline Rader, 23, beauty parlor operator formerly of West Virginia. The girl died yesterday. Figner subsequently was questioned, police believing at the time that an over-dose of narcotics had caused her death. Figner was drawn into the case, police said, because he was with the girl a few hours before she became ill.

OLD TIMERS TODAY

In Which George Stovall Writes About Baseball Stars Of Other Days.

By GEORGE STOVALL
Former Star Big League First Baseman and Former Manager Cleveland Indians, St. Louis Browns and Kansas City Federals. Written Especially for Central Press and The Gazette

Having become injured to public gaze while playing with various National League teams, it is no wonder that Mike Donlin of the movies is one of the least camera shy individuals in Hollywood today.

Donlin has figured in many movie casts and whenever a baseball story is to be filmed the casting directors usually hunt up old Mike to play a role, since he knows more about the diamond than all other movie players combined.

Donlin, quit baseball at the height of his career and turned stage player. After a few years behind the footlights he naturally drifted to the movies, where he seems to have found his place. He has made quite a reputation as an actor.

Donlin's health has been none too good in the last few years and he has been forced to interrupt his work before the camera while he recuperated from current illnesses.

At one time Donlin was forced to consult the Mayo brothers' clinic in Rochester, Minn. Today, however, he appears to be much improved in health.

Donlin's fame as a hitter is of lasting quality. Playing before the days of the lively ball, he rolled up impressive batting averages.

In nine of his twenty years in the majors Mike cracked the sphere for a better than .300 average. His 300 record follows: 1899—.329, 1900—.327, 1901—.340, 1902—.351, 1903—.329, 1904—.329, 1905—.350, 1906—.334, 1911—.316, 1912—.316.

Mike played with the St. Louis Browns and Cincinnati Nationals and Baltimore Americans, but his great work with the New York Nationals as a hard-hitting outfielder is best remembered. Donlin had one peculiarity, a smart and fine batter he was almost useless as a pinch hitter, never ratted a timely one. It seemed that he had a knack for getting the ball the farthest when the bases were empty.

RUMOR DRASTIC SHAKE-UP FOR WHITE SOX; PLAYING POOR BALL

CHICAGO, June 29.—The miserable showing of the Chicago White Sox this year has prompted rumors that the team is due for a "drastic shakeup" within the near future.

To what extent the reorganization will go has not been announced but the Sox obviously have a better team than the present standing indicates and the fans are beginning to ask "why don't they do something to get out of the rut?"

Two players on the team, who haven't been used nearly as much as they might have been, are the cause of much of the "shakeup" discussion. One is infielder Bill Hunefeld and the other is Art Shires, first baseman.

AUTOIST CHOOSES FIRE PLUG TO AVOID CORNER COLLISION

Alleged failure of a motorist to observe a stop street sign is blamed for an auto accident in which a fire plug at Third and Monroe Sts. was damaged for the second time in five days about 7 o'clock Friday night.

Attempting to avert an impending collision, Ted Peacock, colored, driving a touring car owned by Lee Jean, Chinese laundryman, swerved the car into the fire plug, breaking off the top and releasing a stream of water. The break was repaired four hours later.

Peacock was driving east on Third St. and an auto said by police to have been driven by Thomas Davis, W. Market St., was traveling south on Monroe St., giving traffic on Third St. the right of way at the intersection.

Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, recalls that the fire plug was broken in a similar accident at that point last Tuesday and once more is issuing a warning to motorists to observe stop signs.

Suspend Traction
Branch; Through
Bus Line Planned

Rail service on the London branch of the Indiana, Columbus and Eastern Traction Co. will be discontinued July 7, it is announced.

The route includes 9.3 miles of tracks between Summerford and London and Lafayette. Bus lines, however, will serve the community with service between Columbus, West Jefferson, London, Summerford, Springfield and Dayton and from Xenia to London and Columbus.

Xenia may be the terminal of through bus service to Columbus if improvements contemplated are approved by the public utilities commission, it is said. The change would permit bus transportation between Xenia and Columbus without a bus change at London, as is necessary now.

The traction branch is being suspended under authority granted the receiver by Federal Judge J. M. Killits, Toledo. The branch is said to have been operated at a loss of $39,901.13 during 1928.

WOMAN'S BODY IS FOUND IN OIL TANK

NEW LEXINGTON, O., June 29.—Sheriff Clifford Wilson and Prosecuting Attorney E. C. Wagner today planned further investigation into the death of Miss Elizabeth Ray, of Junction City, whose body was found in an oil tank on a farm near Junction City Wednesday.

Officials planned to question several persons after relatives and neighbors voiced dissatisfaction over the suicide verdict given by Coroner H. F. Minshull.

Relatives pointed out that there were no marks on the side of the tank to indicate the girl had scaled it. The tank was nine feet deep and could not have been entered without a ladder or some other means, they pointed out.

Presence of numerous cigarette stubs in the vicinity lead to the theory that the girl might have been drugged and carried there.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Many fans were of the opinion that Swanson, the fleet outfielder for the Cincinnati Reds, would be just another flash in the pan, but they were only partly right. The rookie gardener is admittedly a flash—but not in the pan. He has developed into another Simpson when it comes to circling the bases.

Just as an indication of his speed and daring, Swanson stole third base in the game with Pittsburgh Friday, the theft coming on the first pitched ball when Jess Petty stepped to the box. On another occasion in the same game he made another attempt to swipe the third sack but was out by a step on a close play. The other day he almost got away with an effort to steal home with the bases full.

Swanson is not a reckless runner either but is always on the outlook for a chance to steal bases and to stretch his legs at every possible opportunity. He keeps opposing pitchers in a constant state of anxiety when he gets on base, which is often.

America's leading export to France in recent years has been silver loving cups offered in tennis tournaments. The Davis Cup went over in 1927 and still remains there. For the last three years Rene Lacoste and Cocochet have been taking turns winning the national singles title and this year M. Borotra walked off with the indoor championship cup permanently only four years after it was put in circulation. When any of the three French racket stars are entered in a tournament in this country its sponsors immediately take steps to procure another cup.

Paul Fuller, this city and Newt Murrell, Bowersville, played on the baseball team representing the Cincinnati Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which defeated the St. Louis Division nine in an annual classic at St. Louis Thursday. The score was 30 to 17, indicating it was no pitcher's battle. Murrell plays Sunday baseball with the Bowersville Bayliffs and also plays on the Hooven and Allison Co. team in the American Softball League here.

ANY TEAM MAY WIN AS LEAGUE TEAMS REACH HALF-WAY MARK

Half of the 1929 season in the two softball leagues will be over with the completion of games scheduled for next week, marking the end of the third round of play. At this stage of the race in both leagues, it appears that the ultimate league championships may become the property of almost any of the contending teams.

In the National League, Harness Cigars and the Downtown Country Club, the two leaders, both received drubblings this week from second division nines, the Downtowners losing to the Lang Chevrolet Co. and Harness to Xenia Central High. The D. T. C. Club, however, still has a one-game lead.

The Hooven and Allison Co. and Post Office remain tied for leadership of the American League.

Next week the H. and A. meets Coates Barber Shop Monday night, the D. T. C. Club plays Central High Tuesday night, Rotary opposes the Post Office Wednesday night and Harness plays Langs Friday night. The latter game was scheduled for Thursday but because of the July 4 holiday will be played Friday instead.

Standing in the National League follows:
Team: Won. Lost. Pct.
D. T. C. Club 6 2 .750
Harness 5 3 .625
Langs 4 4 .500
Central High 1 7 .125

Standing in the American League follows:
Team: Won. Lost. Pct.
H. and A. 5 3 .625
Post Office 4 4 .500
Coates 4 4 .500
Rotary 2 6 .250

LUCAS WORKS JINX OVER PITTSBURGH; MAKES TENTH WIN

Yesterday's hero—Pat Malone, whose pitching and hitting helped the Chicago Cubs beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 9 to 5, and gain the National League lead. He hit a home run with two men on base in the second inning when the Cubs scored seven runs.

Red Lucas, Pittsburgh jinx, pitched Cincinnati to a 10 to 3 victory over the Pirates which cost the latter the National League lead. He has won his last ten games from the Pirates.

General Crowder allowed the Chicago White Sox but five hits and the St. Louis Browns strengthened their hold on first place with a 7 to 2 victory.

A wild throw in the eighth by Shea, Detroit catcher, permitted Osewell to score with the winning run and Cleveland beat the Tigers, 5 to 4.

A costly error by Goose Goslin permitted two runners to score and helped the Boston Red Sox beat Washington, 5 to 2.

No other games were played.

STRANGE AS IT MAY SEEM—

Five years ago Max Schmeling had a dream that he was going to be world's heavyweight champion. He was working in the coal mines at the time so he dropped his pick and got himself a pair of boxing gloves. He's been fighting ever since. Minneapolis in 1924, then a member of the old Western league, cracked out 218 home runs. And the rabbit ball wasn't in existence in those old days either. Miller Huggins holds a world's baseball record. He made it while playing second base for St. Paul. On Sept. 17, 1902, Miller accepted nineteen chances. The original Jack Dempsey, known as the Nonpareil fought sixty-two fights in six years without losing a one. He died just thirty-four years ago. Edmund Lamy on Jan. 30, 1913, jumped twenty-five feet seven inches, on ice at Saranac Lake, N. Y. A. Cutler, of Louisville, Ky., pulled his body up by his little finger six times. This great sporting event occurred on Sept. 18, 1878. Frank Marlow, New York night club owner, slain on Long Island, is reported to have won $800,000 in a season betting on the ponies.

ARREST SUSPECTS IN GANG SHOOTING

AKRON, O., June 29.—Three new suspects—two men and a woman—were held at police headquarters today as detectives investigated the assassination of Frank Bellini, reputed underworld leader. Bellini was shot and killed Wednesday by gunmen who sped past his establishment in a curtained automobile. An underworld feud is believed responsible. Funeral services for Bellini will be held late today.

Train Crashes Vacation Bus; Kills Children

Three New York children and a bus driver were instantly killed and seven others injured when a Pittsburgh-New York train struck a bus loaded with children at a grade crossing near Sheffield, Mass. The children were being taken on a vacation by a Jewish charitable organization when the tragedy suddenly ended the happy event. Ruth and Sylvia Kline, left and center, and Sadie Folger, right, are three of the victims.

LEARN MISSIONARY KILLED BY BISON

MARION, O., June 29.—According to dispatches received here, the Rev. John D. Harris, an American missionary to India and husband of a former Marion girl, was killed on May 31 when a wild bison gored him. Word of the missionary's death was received by Mrs. Harris' mother, Mrs. L. G. Hochstahler, Mrs. Rochstahler, Rev. and Mrs. Harris were walking through the jungle when Harris was attacked and fatally gored. Mrs. Harris and her children are expected to return here this summer.

ROTARY WINS BUT IT DOESN'T COUNT

The Rotary Club's softball team, cellars dwellers in the American League, won another game Friday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field, but unfortunately it was a non-league game at the expense of a "pick-up" team of men, enthusiastic fans and regular attendants at softball games each evening. Rotarians barely won at that, the score being 22 to 19.

Women's Record

Virginia Wilson, pretty golfer of Chicago, Ill., broke out with a rash of birdies and burned up the Allegheny country club course at Pittsburgh to lower the world's low score for women with a 71, just one stroke lower than Joyce Wethered, English amateur champ, who formerly held the record. Miss Wilson's score is eight under women's par for the course.

In Which George Stovall Writes About Baseball Stars Of Other Days.

By GEORGE STOVALL
Former Star Big League First Baseman and Former Manager Cleveland Indians, St. Louis Browns and Kansas City Federals. Written Especially for Central Press and The Gazette

Having become inured to public gaze whilst playing with various National League teams, it is no wonder that Mike Donlin of the movies is one of the least camera shy individuals in Hollywood today.

Donlin has figured in many movie casts and whenever a baseball story is to be filmed the casting directors usually hunt up old Mike to play a role, since he knows more about the diamond than all other movie players combined. Donlin quit baseball at the height of his career and turned stage player. After a few years behind the footlights he naturally drifted to the movies, where he seems to have found his place. He has made quite a reputation as an actor.

RUMOR DRASTIC SHAKE-UP FOR WHITE SOX; PLAYING POOR BALL

CHICAGO, June 29.—The miserable showing of the Chicago White Sox this year has prompted rumors that the team is due for a "drastic shakeup" within the near future.

To what extent the reorganization will go has not been announced but the Sox obviously have a better team than the present roster indicates and the fans are beginning to ask "why don't they do something to get out of the rut?"

Two players on the team, who haven't been used nearly as much as they might have been, are the cause of much of the "shakeup" discussion. One is infielder Bill Hume and the other is Art Shires, first baseman.

Hume, a good second baseman and a fair hitter when used regularly, has been out of most of the games and it has been said that his position with the Sox is not as "substantial" as it might be.

Shires, a confident rookie who can play baseball, knows he can play it and isn't backward about saying so, got into trouble with the management before the season started because of his training camp antics.

As a result he has been in only a few games when the team probably could have been strengthened by his help.

Then there was the trade which sent Bill Barrett to Boston for Bill Taitt. It is rumored now that the Sox might have obtained Rothrock instead of Taitt. The fans are asking why Rothrock didn't come here for he has outbitten Taitt.

AUTOIST CHOOSES FIRE PLUG TO AVOID CORNER COLLISION

Alleged failure of a motorist to observe a stop street sign is blamed for an auto accident in which a fire plug at Third and Monroe Sts. was damaged for the second time in five days about 7 o'clock Friday night.

Attempting to avert an impending collision, Ted Peacock, colored, driving a touring car owned by Lee Jean, Chinese laundryman, swerved the car into the fire plug, breaking off the top and releasing a stream of water. The break was repaired four hours later.

Peacock was driving east on Third St. and an auto said by police to have been driven by Thomas Davis, W. Market St., was traveling south on Monroe St. There is a stop sign on Monroe St., giving traffic on Third St. the right of way at the intersection.

Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, recalls that the fire plug was broken in a similar accident at that point last Tuesday and once more is issuing a warning to motorists to observe stop signs.

SUSPEND TRACTION BRANCH; THROUGH BUS LINE PLANNED

Rail service on the London branch of the Indiana, Columbus and Eastern Traction Co., will be discontinued July 7, it is announced.

The route includes 9.3 miles of tracks between Summerford and London and London and Lafayette. Bus lines, however, will serve the community with service between Columbus, West Jefferson, London, Summerford, Springfield and Dayton and from Xenia to London and Columbus.

Xenia may be the terminal of through bus service to Columbus if improvements contemplated are approved by the public utilities commission, it is said. The change would permit bus transportation between Xenia and Columbus without a bus change at London, as is necessary now.

The traction branch is being suspended under authority granted the receiver by Federal Judge J. M. Kilts, Toledo. This branch is said to have been operated at a loss of $39,901.13 during 1928.

WOMAN'S BODY IS FOUND IN OIL TANK

NEW LEXINGTON, O., June 29.—Sheriff Clifford Wilson and Prosecuting Attorney E. C. Wagner today planned further investigation into the death of Miss Elizabeth Ray, of Junction City, whose body was found in an oil tank on a farm near Junction City Wednesday.

Officials planned to question several persons after relatives and neighbors voiced dissatisfaction over the suicide verdict given by Coroner H. F. Minshall.

Relatives pointed out that there were no marks on the side of the tank to indicate the girl had sealed it. The tank was nine feet deep and could not have been entered without a ladder or some other means, they pointed out.

Presence of numerous cigarette stubs in the vicinity lead to the theory that the girl might have been drugged and carried there.

THIRD BAPTIST CHURCH

A. McClintock Howe, Pastor

The Sabbath School will convene at the usual hour, 9:30 a. m. This department of our church life offers to every one an opportunity to study the word of God in order for the better and higher service.

At 10:45, the pastor will deliver the morning message from the theme: "The Immeasurable Dimensions of the Love of Christ, as Manifested in Himself."

6:30 p. m. The B. Y. P. U. will have charge. This service is always one of spiritual uplift.

7:45 p. m. The pastor will preach from the subject: "We Have a Strong City, Will You Take Up Citizenship Within Her Walls?" This church invites every one to its services and fellowship.

Wednesday evening: Prayer-meeting. Come to this sweet hour of social prayer.

At a meeting of the membership of the Third Baptist Church, last Wednesday evening, the church laid plans for a general association to be known as the General Association of the Third Baptist Church. The city is divided into two groups. All members living on the south side of Main St. will be designated as the Southern District Association of the Third Baptist Church, and all members living on the north side of Main St. will be designated as the Northern District Association of the Third Baptist Church. Mr. Isadore Roberts was elected moderator of the southern district, with Mrs. Cora Kelly as secretary, other officers and committees to be chosen.

Mrs. A. M. Howe was elected moderator of the Northern District Association, with Miss M. I. Howland as clerk, and other officers and committees to be chosen. The month will come together in the month of September in a general association. Wait and watch for this great gathering, as we are bringing to Xenia a real general association, and those persons who have not availed themselves of attending our state general association, will have it brought to you.

ZION BAPTIST CHURCH

THIRD M. E. CHURCH

E. Market St.

Rev. C. H. McDonald, Pastor

Sunday School at 9:30 a. m. Miss L. Chinn, Supt. Preaching at 11 o'clock. Sermon by the pastor.

Evening services at 7:30 in charge of pastor. On last Sunday June 23, the Rev. McDonald in the morning services delivered a very inspiring as well as practical message on the subject "Our Present Sonship with God." 1 John 2:3. Come out and hear this able speaker at the church where all may find a cordial welcome.

MIDDLE RUN BAPTIST CHURCH

Joseph C. Carroll, A. M., D. B., Minister

The pastor will preach at the morning and evening services. Good music by the choir. A group of young ladies from the Wilberforce summer school will assist with the music at the evening service. Middle Run is said to be the oldest Negro Baptist Church in the state of Ohio, it has many historic traditions, which should be preserved and handed on to generations yet unborn. If the members and friends value these traditions they should rally to this old historic church. The gospel is intelligently presented from this pulpit, and religion is emphasized as a conservator of social values.

A DRAB LITTLE MOTH FLIES TO HAPPINESS

READ THIS FIRST:
Vivian Matthews, shy and unhappy because she was a doorstep baby, marries Kentworth Hillman Johns III, whom she secretly loves, on a business basis. At the end of a year he is to give her one hundred thousand dollars and a divorce in Paris. They have just returned from their platonic honeymoon in New York when Aurelia "Dovie" Jansen, who jilted Kent to marry the Count Von Popper, returns with her mother and contrives to get Kent into her net again. Mann Barkow, famous illustrator, whom Vivian met in New York, flies to Denver to paint her—and she buys his small airship and is learning to fly. Vivian knows Kent and "Dovie" have renewed their love affair. She sees them together at a new roadhouse, the "Whoopee."

Kent quarrels with Vivian for being seen "out like that."

"Sing, Cuddles," Vivian begged. "I haven't heard you play and sing for ages."

She crossed to the piano and swung herself over the stool, hunched up until even her sitting position was funny. Her face assumed a mournful expression, and she began warbling.

She was a scream. First a Jewish comedy number, then Irish and Italian, and finally a little Irish ballad in her soft mezzo. Barkow clapped his hands in sincere praise when she finished. She was telling of some of her struggles when Celeste appeared at the door.

Her face held a dour expression and she wrinkled her little nose comically.

"Madame—ze beeg fat girl from nex' door. She es in the library."

"Didn't I tell you," Cuddles chanted. "Here comes the Dove of Peace."

"Oh—tell her to come in," Vivian said finally. "We can't very well say we're not in. She heard us, I suppose."

Neither of the girls noticed the look that passed from Barkow to Dovie when she was presented to him. His face was a mask.

"Countess Von Popper, it is a pleasure."

Dovie for just a moment appeared nonplussed. But she soon controlled herself and smiled coyly at Mann.

"You seem, Mr. Barkow, to be finding quite a lot to interest you in our little hamlet."

"Yes," he smiled back at her. "I have made quite a study. Other natives have reminded me of it. But I find Bender a delightful place. Lots of color."

"Oh, yes," she smirked at Vivian. It was unspeakably bad taste, and Vivian wanted to slap her.

Cuddles was enjoying herself, and for once remained quiet. Mann smiled again, disarmingly.

"You see, it is taking me so long to paint Mrs. Johns because I am entering the picture in the International Art exhibit in Paris. It is the only entry I am going to make."

The Theater

Ten years ago a chap named Russell Birdwell handled publicity for Mary and Jack Pickford and he engaged a stenographer named Alya White.

One day Mrs. Pickford came in to the office, espied Miss White and informed Mr. Birdwell of his stenographer didn't wear more clothes he would have to discharge her. Birdwell delivered the message.

The next day Miss White arrived wearing still fewer clothes. She arrived also with a demand that her salary be raised from eighteen dollars a week to twenty. Birdwell was very unhappy about it, but the only raise he could give her was out of the door. A year later he, too, was fired.

Today Alya White—now Alice—receives a four-figure weekly salary. Birdwell, in his capacity as Fox director, receives a plump three figure one. You never know.

Director Mervyn Leroy suggested he go out to Griffith Park in Hollywood and practice. Dressed in swank riding attire, Eddie showed up for the appointment, dug into his pocket and stripped the horse of sugar.

"All right, let's go," the ring master said.

Eddie started to mount the horse he had bribed with the sugar.

"That's not your horse," enlightened the r. m. "The one next to him." Buzzell sidled close to the horse's ear and in a pleading voice, murmured: "Honest, I meant the sugar for you, nice horse, honest

Mary Brian is rapidly earning the rep on the Famous Players' lot of being to the female players what Richard Arlen is to the men.

Dick works in more pictures per year than any other youth on the lot and Mary is commencing to keep pace with him. From "The Man I Love" she went immediately into "Magnolia". With only a few hours' sleep to bridge the grease paint routine, she traipsed into "The Virginian" with Gary Cooper. The day after completing this she started rehearsing with Harry Green in "The Kibitzer" adapted from "last winter's" popular stage hit. All of this comprised only about twelve weeks.

Wednesday evening: Prayer-meeting. Come to this sweet hour of social prayer.

At a meeting of the membership of the Third Baptist Church, last Wednesday evening, the church laid plans for a general association to be known as the General Association of the Third Baptist Church. The city is divided into two groups. All members living on the south side of Main St. will be designated as the Southern District Association of the Third Baptist Church, and all members living on the north side of Main St. will be designated as the Northern District Association of the Third Baptist Church. Mr. Isadore Roberts was elected moderator of the southern district, with Mrs. Cora Kelly as secretary, other officers and committees to be chosen.

• Mrs. A. M. Howe was elected moderator of the Northern District Association, with Miss M. I. Howard as clerk, and other officers and committees to be chosen. The two will come together in the month of September in a General Association. Wait and watch for this great gathering, as we are bringing to Xenia a real general association, and those persons who have not availed themselves of attending our state general association, will have it brought to you.

MIDDLE RUN BAPTIST CHURCH

Joseph C. Carroll, A. M., D. B., Minister. The pastor will preach at the morning and evening services. Good music by the choir. A group of young ladies from the Wilberforce summer school will assist with the music at the evening service. Middle Run is said to be the oldest Negro Baptist Church in the state of Ohio. It has many historic traditions, which should be preserved and handed on to generations yet unborn. If the members and friends value these traditions they should rally to this old historic church. The gospel is intelligently presented from this pulpit, and religion is emphasized as a conservator of social values.

READ THIS FIRST:

Vivian Matthews, shy and unhappy because she was a doornest baby, married Kentworth Hillman Johns III, whom she secretly loves, on a business basis. At the end of a year he is to give her one hundred thousand dollars and a divorce in Paris. They have just returned from their platonic honeymoon in New York when Aurelia "Dovie" Jansen, who jilted Kent to marry the Count Von Popper, returns with her mother and contrives to get Kent into her net again. Mann Barkow, famous illustrator, whom Vivian met in New York, flies to Denver to paint her—and she buys his small airship and is learning to fly. Vivian knows Kent and "Dovie" have renewed their love affair. She sees them together at a new roadhouse, the "Whoopee."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII

"Listen, Viv. He's jealous. That's what is the matter with him!" Vivian laughed at Cuddles as though she thought she was mad.

"Jealous! My grandmother's nightgown!" Cuddles nodded wisely. "Things are picking up, Priscilla. Put down your knitting and get down to brass tacks. You got your ill husband going. And that isn't the only romance in the house." She lowered her voice.

"When I came in 'Celeste was hanging on to Zeek's ice wagon as though she couldn't let him out of her sight."

Vivian screamed with merriment. "Kent said she'd like him! Mercy wouldn't that be funny? Kippy is crazy about her, too, but she won't give him a tumble. Calls chauffeur a 'lazy man's job.'"

"You know what she calls Kippy, don't you? She calls him a 'nasty grass-skipper.'"

"On, she hated grass hoppers, so last summer she went into hysterics every time she saw one," Vivian grinned appreciatively. "She doesn't like Kent, either. Tells him just like that to go roll a pooper."

"There isn't a swim in town that wouldn't love to park in your kitchen and chant the French national anthem every night."

"Bark is coming for tea, you must stay," Vivian said in an up-stage grand manner. "Celeste is quite crazy about him. I almost fear competition."

"I'll stay for tea, madame," Cuddles drew herself up to her full five feet two. "But, I feel in justice to you I should tell you that the young man in question gives me palpitation of the heart myself. Look out for dirty work!"

"Lay off," Vivian warned her, laughing. "He is the one great oasis in the whole desert of my existence. Without him I should perish. He is the only man who has ever looked at me twice."

Cuddles sighed heavily. "You eat him, I'll starve."

"Just then Barkow was announced. He brought a breath of winter with him, and was wearing a heavy fur lined coat. The wind was blowing terrifically.

"Gosh, Vivian," he shivered and stretched his hands to the open fire, "it keeps up it's just too bad. I was going to let you soil the moonshine next week."

"This isn't such good flying weather," she looked out, disappointed. "But this is sure to be a mild winter. Everyone says so. Only two weeks till Christmas."

Cuddles turned on the radio. They sat before the crackling log fire of the big living room and listened to a symphony concert from New York until Cuddles jumped up.

"That's terrible! Can't we find a real orchestra?" She turned in a restaurant in Cleveland—a tea daisant—and the music got her. She began to dance. Vivian had no idea Cuddles could dance like that, and Barkow was finally sitting on the edge of his chair. High kicks, splits, back bends, taps. She was a young dynamo.

"You ought to go back to New York," he told her when she finished. "This is no place for talent like that."

"Thank you," Cuddles was serious for once in her life, and her pigmy little face took on a pensive look. "I was there four years. But I just couldn't make a go of it without pull."

"Do you sing, too?" he asked, interested.

"Sing, Cuddles," Vivian begged.

"I haven't heard you play and sing for ages."

She crossed to the piano and swung herself over the stool, hunched up until even her sitting position was funny. Her face assumed a mournful expression, and she began warbling.

She was a scream. First a Jewish comedy number, then Irish and Italian, and finally a little Irish ballad in her soft mezzo. Barkow clapped his hands in sincere praise when she finished. She was telling of some of her struggles when Celeste appeared at the door.

Her face held a dour expression and she wrinkled her little nose comically.

"Madame—ze beeg fat girl from nex' door. She es in the library."

"Didn't I tell you," Cuddles chanted. "Here comes the Dove of Peace."

"Oh—tell her to come in," and Vivian said finally. "We can't very well say were not in. Sue heard us, I suppose."

Neither of the girls noticed the look that passed from Barkow to Dovie when she was presented to him. His face was a mask.

"Countess Von Popper, it is a pleasure."

Dovie for just a moment appeared nonplussed. But she soon controlled herself and smiled coyly at Mann.

"You seem, Mr. Barkow, to be finding quite a lot to interest you in our little hamlet."

"Yes," he smiled back at her. "I have made quite a stay. Other natives have reminded me of it. But I find Denver a delightful place. Lots of color."

"Oh, yes," she smiled at Vivian. It was unpeppably bad taste, and Vivian wanted to slap her.

Cuddles was enjoying herself, and for once remained quiet. Mann smiled again, disarmingly.

"You see, it is taking me so long to paint Mrs. Johns because I am entering the picture in the International Art exhibit in Paris. It is the only entry I am going to make."

word and finding that it was in usage almost half a dozen centuries ago, spelled the same way, and having a similar connotation.

Some time later, Ben Jonson, the English bard, made a reference in his "Masque Gypsies" to "The B of the Whoopee Barnable." But so you think the whoopee ladies in that outfit bore any resemblance to the ones in the pictures above?

In this year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, there are many varieties of whoopee. There's the kind that has to do with the imbibing of glogg water. There's the Tex Guttan variety, which, naturally, has nothing to do with alcoholic beverages. But give us the common ordinary garden variety which everybody knows and understands, and which needs no research—just strength and endurance!

Dr. Frank H. Vize-Telley, lexicographer, went and threw cold water on the claims of innumerable newspaper columnists, actors, theatrical producers and Broadway playboys, each contending that he was the originator of that mysterious word "whoopee."

In other words, he put the damper on the whole business by actually making a research of the

THIRD BAPTIST CHURCH

A. McClintock Howe, Pastor
The Sabbath School will convene at the usual hour, 9:30 a. m. This department of our church life offers to every one an opportunity to study the word of God in order for the better and higher service.

At 10:45, the pastor will deliver the morning message from the theme: "The Immeasurable Dimensions of the Love of Christ, as Manifested in Himself."

6:30 p. m. The B. Y. P. U. will have charge. This service is always one of spiritual uplift.

7:45 p. m. The pastor will preach from the subject: "We Have a Strong City. Will You Take Up Citizenship Within Her Walls?"

This church invites every one to its services and fellowship. Wednesday evening: Prayer-meeting. Come to this sweet hour of social prayer.

At a meeting of the membership of the Third Baptist Church, last Wednesday evening, the church laid plans for a general association to be known as the General Association of the Third Baptist Church. The city is divided into two groups. All members living on the south side of Main St. will be designated as the Southern District Association of the Third Baptist Church, and all members living on the north side of Main St. will be designated as the Northern District Association of the Third Baptist Church. Mr. Isadore Roberts was elected moderator of the southern district, with Mrs. Cora Keely as secretary, other officers and committees to be chosen.

Mrs. A. M. Howe was elected moderator of the Northern District Association, with Miss M. I. Howard as clerk, and other officers and committees to be chosen. The two will come together in the month of September in a General Association. Wait and watch for this great gathering as we are bringing to Xenia a real general association, and those persons who have not availed themselves of attending our state general association, will have it brought to you.

Ten years ago a chap named Russell Birdwell handled publicity for Mary and Jack Pickford and he engaged a stenographer named Alya White.

One day Mrs. Pickford came in to the office, espied Miss White and informed Mr. Birdwell if his stenographer didn't wear more clothes he would have to discharge her. Birdwell delivered the message.

The next day Miss White arrived wearing still fewer clothes. She arrived also with a demand that her salary be raised from eighteen dollars a week to twenty. Birdwell was very unhappy about it, but the only raise he could give her was out of the door. A year later he, too, was fired.

Today Alya White—now Alice—receives a four-figure weekly salary. Birdwell, in his capacity as Fox director, receives a plump three figure one. You never know.

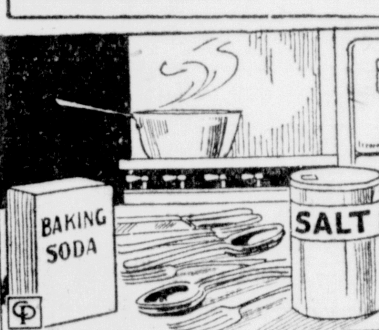

Eddie Buzzell, the well-known Broadway pint-sized comedian, must learn to ride horseback for his forthcoming picture, "Little Johnny Jones".

Director Mervyn Leroy suggested he go out to Griffith Park in Hollywood and practice. Dressed in swank riding attire, Eddie showed up for the appointment, dug into his pocket and slipped the horse lumps of sugar.

"All right, let's go," the ring master said. Eddie started to mount the horse he had bribed with the sugar.

"That's not your horse," enlightened the r. m. "The one next to him." Buzzell sidled close to the horse's ear and in a pleading voice, murmured: "Honest, I meant the sugar for you, nice horsey, honest"

Dick works in more pictures per year than any other youth on the lot and Mary is commencing to keep pace with him. From "The Man I Love" she went immediately into "Magnolia". With only a few hours' sleep to bridge the grease paint routine, she traipsed into "The Virginian" with Gary Cooper. The day after completing this she started rehearsing with Harry Green in "The Kibitzer", adapted from "Last Winter's" popular stage hit. All of this comprised only about twelve weeks.

WALTER KAHOE MADE ALUMNI PRESIDENT AT ANTIOCH DINNER

Walter Kahoe, director of the Antioch Press, Yellow Springs, was elected president of the Antioch College Alumni Association at the business meeting which preceded the annual alumni banquet, held in the college dining room Friday night, Arthur Zoig, Dayton, is the retiring president.

Other new officers for the coming year are: Ernest Henderson, Dayton, vice president; Miss Ella Fogg, Yellow Springs, re-elected secretary; and Russell Stewart, Yellow Springs, treasurer. These officers along with Attorney Homer Corry, Springfield, and Miss Susan G. Fralick, registrar of the college, will compose the executive committee.

Nearly 175 reservations were made for the banquet at which members of the 1929 graduating class were honor guests of the alumni and were welcomed into the organization.

Arthur Zoig, retiring president, presided as toastmaster and gave the welcoming address to the incoming members. The response was delivered by Nelson Urban, Dayton, president of the senior class.

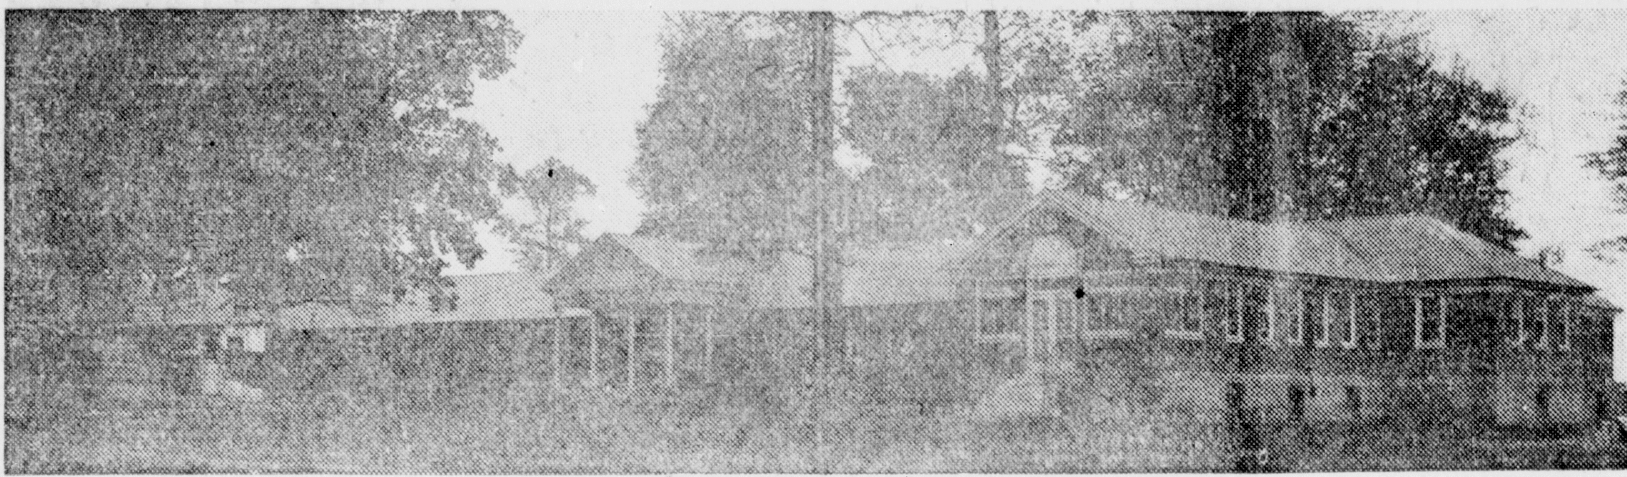

Other speeches were made by Arthur E. Morgan, president of the college; United States Senator Simeon D. Pess, whose home is in Yellow Springs and who attended the banquet following his custom of the last ten years; Lehr Pess, his son, an Antioch graduate; and by Walter Kahoe, the new president.

During the banquet musical entertainment was also provided. Miss Leontine Jenks played violin solos with Ava Hilbert at the piano.

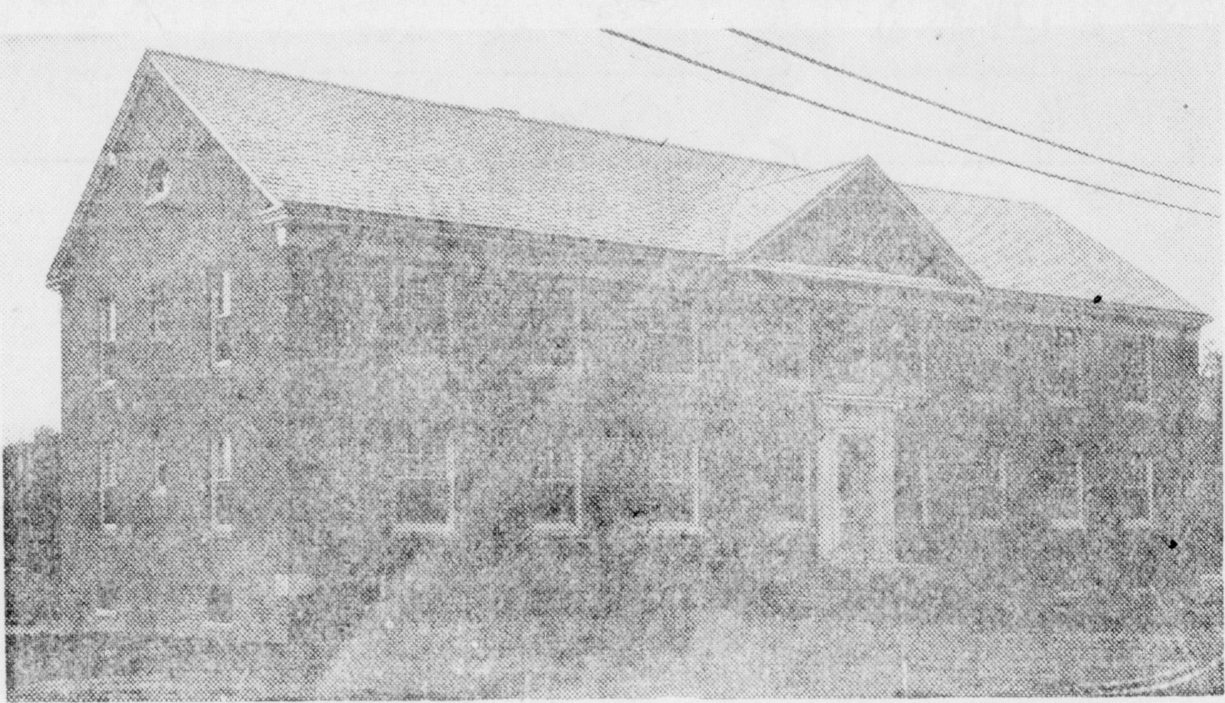

Friday afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock the annual reception to the fifty-six seniors and members of the faculty was held on the lawn of the residence of President Morgan.

Following the alumni banquet, beginning at 9:30 o'clock, two plays entitled "Arno del Capo" and "Two Slatterns and a King," both by Edna St. Vincent Millay, were presented by the Antioch Players, the college's dramatic organization, on the front steps of the main building. WILL DEDICATE NEW HOME BUILDINGS IN SEPTEMBER

NEW HOME HOSPITAL

BOYS' COTTAGE

GIRLS' COTTAGE

Dedicatory exercises for the new $100,000 hospital and two new cottages at the O. S. and S. O. Home, originally planned for last May, will be held the first week of next September with the re-opening of school at the institution.

Although the general construction work has been completed, the hospital and cottages are not ready for occupancy. They will be fitted up with equipment during the summer months and will be ready in time for formal dedication next fall.

The two new cottages were built at a cost of $75,000 and will be used for a "men's hall" and a "women's hall."

According to present plans, the United Spanish-American War Veterans' Association will dedicate the boys' cottage and the girls' cottage will be dedicated by the American Legion. Civil War veterans will dedicate those cottages that are being remodeled.

Governor Myers V. Cooper will deliver the chief address dedicating the new hospital and members of the medical and surgical consulting staff of the Home, comprising men prominent in the profession from all parts of the state, will be present for the exercises.

GAS RATE INCREASE FOR WILBEERFORCE

The Dayton Power and Light Co. has filed with the state utilities commission a schedule of increased rates for gas service to be charged consumers at Wilberforce, effective July 17.

Under the proposed schedule, there would be a minimum charge of $1 for the first 500 cubic feet of gas a month; sixty cents per 1,000 cubic feet for the next 19,500 cubic feet, and fifty-five cents per 1,000 for gas used in excess of 20,000 cubic feet per month.

A delayed payment charge of three cents per 1,000 cubic feet, or fraction thereof, would be added if bills are not paid within the five-day period provided.

DIES ON FRIDAY

Mrs. Alvretta Dodds, 64, Springfield, half-sister of Maywood Horney, Cedarville, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edna Lewis, 1,015 E. Olive St., Springfield, Friday after three months' illness.

She leaves her daughter, a sister and seven half-brothers. Funeral services will be held Sunday at 1 p. m. at the Schaefer funeral home, Springfield, with burial in Jeffersonville.

BRITISH AIRPLANE CARRIER FINDS MEN WITH WRECKED SHIP

he broke into tears and could not talk. When he regained his composure he cried out: "estan salvados," meaning "they are safe."

The premier then returned to his office and rested for a few minutes. Then he went to the chapel inside the war office and heard mass, today being a holiday in Spain.

Among the first people to arrive at the war office were Francisco Jimenez and Ignacio Iglesias, the two trans-Atlantic fliers who recently made a flight to South America. Both received the news of the rescue joyfully.

The rescue of the lost aviators was the culmination of the widest search made for missing airmen since the Italia was lost in the Arctic Circle.

France and his three companions left Cartagena, Spain, for an attempted flight to the United States via the Azores on Friday, June 21. On their first night out they were heard from when they were leaving the coast of Portugal and setting out to sea. After that there was no more word of them.

France's companions were Capt. Ruiz De Alda; Major Eduardo Gallarza and a mechanic, Pedro Madariaga. They were expected to land at the Azores Islands last Saturday morning. At first there was no anxiety felt for them; in view of the great experience of the fliers, who were known for their flying skill. It was believed that they had drifted out of their course. But as days passed with no information concerning them the resources of five nations were thrown into the hunt for the missing men.

A Portuguese gunboat stationed at the Azores aided Spanish ships and seaplanes in searching the vicinity and then Italy joined in the hunt, with gunboats and seaplanes. Great Britain was next, with the Eagle, which finally made the rescue, and then France sent out two cruisers.

The Spaniards took off from Alcazares Airport, Cartagena, in their huge airplane, Dornier No. 16, during the afternoon a week ago yesterday. They took enough fuel along to last them until they reached the Azores. They had enough food and water to last them the whole trip to the United States.

In Spain the populace never did give up hope that the fliers might be alive. The confidence in the ability of the fliers was so great that the people refused to despair even after the government had practically abandoned the hope of ever finding not only the fliers but even traces of the plane.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

AIRPORTS
New York has many airports, and soon may have the best airport in the United States.

Of course, New York ought to have the best airport, being the largest city. But, up to date, all the airports serving the metropolis have been something less than perfect.

For one thing, they have been too far from town. That's the difficulty about airports in most cities. In New York it has been worse than elsewhere, because it is so far from the center of population in the city to any big field suitable for air-plane landings and takeoffs.

Looking about over the map of the metropolitan area, it was discovered by airport promoters that the closest big fields are the New Jersey marshes. Some of these low-lying fields are so big that you could build two or three cities on them.

So a development company went to work on a Jersey marsh right across the Hudson river from Manhattan, at Secaucus, N. J. Nine hundred acres constituted the unit that serves as the main part of the airport now being developed there. Another hundred acres, to pieces out the even thousand, is under lease.

The developers found that excavation and trucking companies would pay well for the privilege of dumping on the nine hundred acres thousands of loads of clay and rock every day. Thus the land was built up.

The promoters promise a large lake from which seaplanes may take off, and upon which they may alight. There will be a mooring mast for dirigibles. And there will be acres of concrete floor upon which airplanes may alight.

The airport business is becoming a big factor in city planning and city development throughout the world. The younger cities and the smaller towns out west, where land is still fairly cheap and does not have to be built up out of marshes, ought to be looking out for the future now. A big and complete airport now may mean as much to the future of the town as a good railroad meant forty years ago.

Farm Notes

RASPBERRY WILT
Raspberry plants are so sensitive to moisture conditions that they wilt when the soil is either too dry or too wet. Some of the heaviest losses sustained by Ohio growers are due to death of plants from this cause, according to L. M. Cooley, assistant in plant pathology at the Ohio Experiment Station.

Raspberries require a constant supply of water throughout the growing season. They suffer immediately and severely from either lack or abundance of moisture in the soil. Water standing about the base of the plants for a day may cause them to wilt and die or be permanently injured.

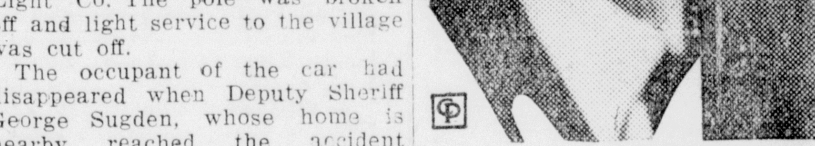

Such sensitiveness, Mr. Cooley says, is probably due to the active respiration of the root system. Too much water about the roots prevent proper respiration, exerting a suffocating effect, which causes the plants to wilt.

Soil on which raspberries are to be grown should be naturally well drained. They drive best on porous sandy fertile soils. They may be grown on rather heavy clay soil, provided it is loose and friable and contains plenty of humus.

Plantings on heavy soil that is in poor mechanical condition are doomed to failure in spite of the best culture. Such soils are soggy, retain too much moisture which excludes air from the roots.

Wilt may be caused by attacks of a parasitic fungus, but this is comparatively rare and seems to be of little economic importance in Ohio. Growers may prevent most losses from wilt by selecting for their raspberry plantings only those locations that have good soil and good natural drainage.

BRITISH AIRPLANE CARRIER FINDS MEN WITH WRECKED SHIP

he broke into tears and could not talk. When he regained his composure he cried out: "eston salvados," meaning "they are safe."

The premier then returned to his office and rested for a few minutes. Then he went to the chapel inside the war office and heard mass, today being a holiday in Spain.

Among the first people to arrive at the war office were Francisco Jimenez and Ignacio Iriarte, the two trans-Atlantic fliers who recently made a flight to South America. Both received the news of the rescue joyfully.

The rescue of the lost aviators was the culmination of the widest search made for missing airmen since the Italia was lost in the Arctic Circle.

France and his three companions left Cartagena, Spain, for an attempted flight to the United States via the Azores on Friday, June 21. On their first night out they were heard from when they were leaving the coast of Portugal and setting out to sea. After that there was no more word of them.

France's companions were Capt. Luis De Alda; Major Eduardo Gallardo and a mechanic, Pedro Madariaga. They were expected to land at the Azores Islands last Saturday morning. At first there was no anxiety felt for them; in view of the great experience of the fliers, who were known for their flying skill. It was believed that they were lost in a fog and that they had drifted out of their course. But as days passed with no information concerning them the resources of five nations were thrown into the hunt for the missing men.

A Portuguese gunboat stationed at the Azores aided Spanish ships and seaplanes in searching the vicinity and then Italy joined in the hunt, with gunboats and seaplanes. Great Britain was next, with the Eagle, which finally made the rescue, and then France sent out two cruisers.

The Spaniards took off from Alcazar, Airport, Cartagena, in their Juze airplane, Bombar No. 16, during the afternoon a week ago yesterday. They took enough fuel along to last them until they reached the Azores. They had enough food and water to last them the whole trip to the United States.

In Spain the populace never did give up hope that the fliers might be alive. The confidence in the ability of the fliers was so great that the people refused to despair even after the government had practically abandoned the hope of ever finding not only the fliers but even traces of the plane.

RASPBERRY WILT

Raspberry plants are so sensitive to moisture conditions that they wilt when the soil is either too dry or too wet. Some of the heaviest losses sustained by Ohio growers are due to death of plants from this cause, according to L. M. Cooley, assistant in plant pathology at the Ohio Experiment Station.

Raspberries require a constant supply of water throughout the growing season. They suffer immediately and severely from either lack or abundance of moisture in the soil. Water standing about the base of the plants for a day may cause them to wilt and die or be permanently injured.

Such sensitivity, Mr. Cooley says, is probably due to the active respiration of the root system. Too much water about the roots prevent proper respiration, exerting a suffocating effect, which causes the plants to wilt.

Soil on which raspberries are to be grown should be naturally well drained. They drive best on sandy fertile soils. They may be grown on rather heavy clay soils provided it is loose and friable and contains plenty of humus.

 Plantings on heavy soil that is in poor mechanical condition are doomed to failure in spite of the best culture. Such soils are soggy, retain too much moisture which excludes air from the roots.
 Wilt may be caused by attacks of a parasitic fungus, but this is comparatively rare and seems to be of little economic importance in Ohio. Growers may prevent most losses from wilt by selecting for their raspberry plantings only those locations that have good soil and good natural drainage.

May Bust Trusts

With congress becoming apprehensive of huge mergers, Russell Hardy, new special assistant to U. S. Attorney General Mitchell, engaged in enforcing anti-trust laws, looms importantly.

ALPHA IN DARKNESS AS AUTO HITS POLE

The village of Alpha, five miles west of Xenia, was without lights for two hours between 9 and 11 o'clock Friday night after an auto driven by a man believed to be a resident of Dayton left the Dayton-Xenia Pike near the Beaver-creek Church and crashed into a pole of the Dayton Power and Light Co. The pole was broken off and light service to the village was cut off.

The occupant of the car had disappeared when Deputy Sheriff George Sugden, whose home is nearby, reached the accident scene. It was reported to Sugden that the driver was hurt but it is thought he was taken to Dayton.

The auto, which was being driven toward Dayton, was an old Buick touring car and was badly damaged. It bore a license issued out of Dayton.
